Freshmen Step In Seniors Step Out

The 1982-1983 year was fantastic and that's no lie!

The year started off with freshmen orientation and ended with graduation, the time between was filled with fun and excitement. As the students began getting into the day to day pattern of going to class, and the freshmen got into the high school way of life, things started to pick up around A.C.H.S.

Students went to the usual football games on Friday nights. Many students went to see the girls volleyball team during their incredible season. Dances had their usual appeal to students of Camarillo. Throughout Double Lunch week many students showed their spirit by dressing up in strange costumes. Basketball brought out the traditional large crowds and students attended other sporting events as the year progressed.

Rallies, which most students went to, created pride and enthusiasm. Scorpions seemed to get caught up in fads and fashion. This added fun and creativity to the everyday routine.

The year was truly filled with the fun and enjoyment that it deserved.

Scorpion Spirit

S-p-i-r-i-t Hey, Let's Hear It, We've Got Spirit!

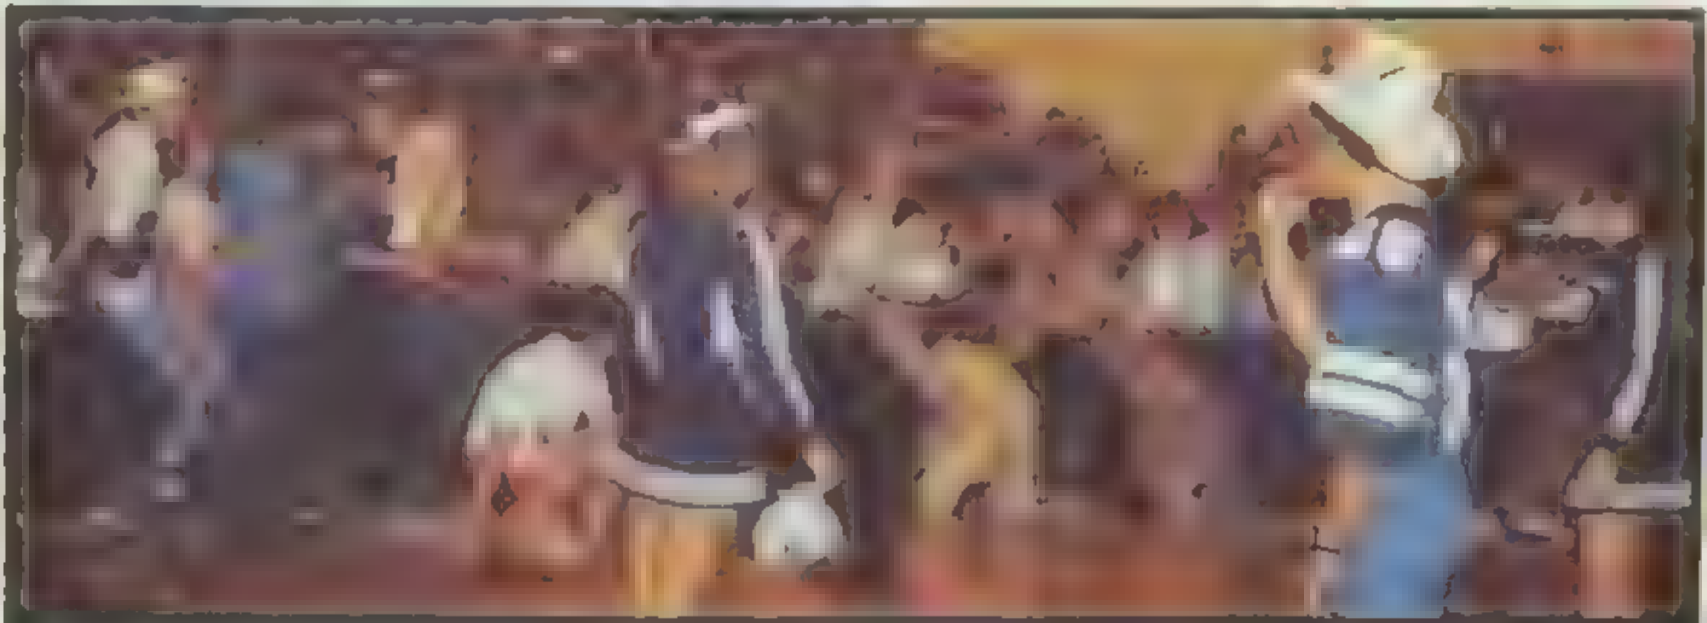

Going into the 1982-83 school year the talk around school was that spirit would never be as great as the year before. As the year went on this was proved wrong. Despite a losing campaign by the football team the stands remained full all season. During the girls amazing volleyball season more students turned out more then ever before, and of course the crowds at the basketball games remained large and very boiterous. School spirit was portrayed around the campus with signs urging on the team. Junior and Senior girls showed their spirit by participating in a powder puff football game. During rallies classes competed in competition and in cheers such as "roll call." Spirit was even shown in the clothes students wore such as Scorpion hats, shirts, shorts, jackets, and even Scorpion knitwear.

Homecoming Rallies

Scorpion Rallies Spark-Up The Homecoming Excitement And Spirit.

Rallies brought out the enthusiasm and spirit of Homecoming. The first rally was for the nominations. Nominees for the court were picked differently than previous years. As well as the student body's nominations, the teachers and the football team each selected a girl.

The freshman nominees were Sylvia Bartell, Sharon Burckhard, Mindy Gillihan and Ann Winters. The sophomore nominees were Sheri Diaz, Jeri Grossnicklaus, Tami Howe and Sally Packham. The juniors selected were Julie Alley, Karen Doran, Vicki McCardell and Jenny Winters. The senior nominations included Heather Ackroyd, Mary Carman, Lisa Culberson, Wendy Edgerly, Melissa Jordan and Robin Taylor.

The next rally was held on the day of the game. The songleaders performed a routine to the song "Don't Fight It". Laughter roared through the gym as Ms. Conway, Mr. Lillich and Mr. Glenn each got a pie in the face thanks to student donations collected by the ASB. Finally the announcement of the Queen and court. The crowds cheered as Sylvia Bartell was announced freshman princess. Jeri Grossnicklaus was chosen sophomore princess. The junior class chose Jenny Winters, and the seniors chose Robin Taylor. Wendy Edgerly reigned over the court as this years Queen.

Homecoming Night

Excitement Fills The Air As The Homecoming Festivities Proceed.

October 8th and 9th were a busy and thrilling two days for many Camarillo High School students.

Although we were defeated in our Homecoming game, it could not be denied that it was a night of fun and excitement.

During halftime E.T. made an appearance on the senior float, and the juniors showed their spirit on their flashy "Class of 84" float. The Queen and each member of her court were escorted across the field and crowned by their fathers. A display of fireworks was the finale of the halftime show.

The Homecoming dance was held for the first time, at the Ventura County Masonic Center in Camarillo. The band played hit songs including the Homecoming theme, Destination Unknown.

Overall, Homecoming was a big success and much fun, from the very first rally to the last dance.

ACHS With Friends

Friends at Camarillo High school, kept the campus alive.

Whether it be a close friend or a person who just says "Hi", in the hall, everybody has friends. Friends are people with whom one shares fun times and feelings.

At Camarillo High, friends were an essential element of student life.

On campus, friends spent time together in the morning before class, during passing time between classes, and especially at lunch, when they had time to sit down and enjoy a conversation. After school, many friends would participate together in extra-curricular activities such as sports and clubs. The studious ones would get together to help each other out in homework and studying. At football, basketball and other sports, friends could be seen together cheering and having a good time.

These confidantes were not limited to just school associated activities. Friends would do all kinds of things together. They would go out to the movies, to concerts, or other events for entertainment.

Friends at A.C.H.S. have shared good times and experiences they'll never forget.

Fads! Fads! Fads!

New And Crazy Fun Comes To ACHS Through Different Fads

New trends and fads hit the students of Camarillo High School. Students came to school wearing T-shirts with the faces of some old, but favorite stars, such as Beaver from "Leave It To Beaver." Sweatshirt and T-shirts with colorful script across the front presenting such words as "Heaven" "Malibu", and "Beverly Hills" were also worn by many students.

T-shirts and sweatshirts such as this "Beverly Hills" sweatshirt is a fad worn by many.

Other fads included the strange but fun Dee-Lee boppers, Buttons with favorite singing group names, or smart remarks. Of course, the get-thin quick fad diets such as the Scarsdale, Cambridge, and Beverly Hills were a hit. ET made his debut along with many forms of ET paraphernalia.

All these fads and many others were interesting and fun for Camarillo students.

Student Artwork

ACHS students show creativity and talent in their special work

Though some students' artwork was obvious in classrooms, on murals, or in the library, others' talents were hidden from sight. These were students who put their talents to use at home. From puppets to portraits, each student's ability was unique and developed excellent results.

Several students entered their projects in events and won many awards. Some even sold their work to admirers.

Though many talented students showed similarity in ability, each had his own interests and techniques. Painting, sketching, and sculptures are just a few examples.

With their fabulous ability, these talented students may someday make a name for themselves.

ACHS Fashion

Old Became New As Timeless Styles Invaded The Fashion Scene.

Fashion in the 82-83 year leaned toward a more classic and sophisticated look.

Polo shirts and oxfords, as well as pumps and loafers, were an old classic brought back to life. The year began with these basics, and nice slacks, skirts, and sweaters were added. Sweaters varied from pullovers to cardigans or even vests, all in plain colors to argyle. Pants for girls revealed the ankles, a capri type style, while the guys came to school wearing basic twills.

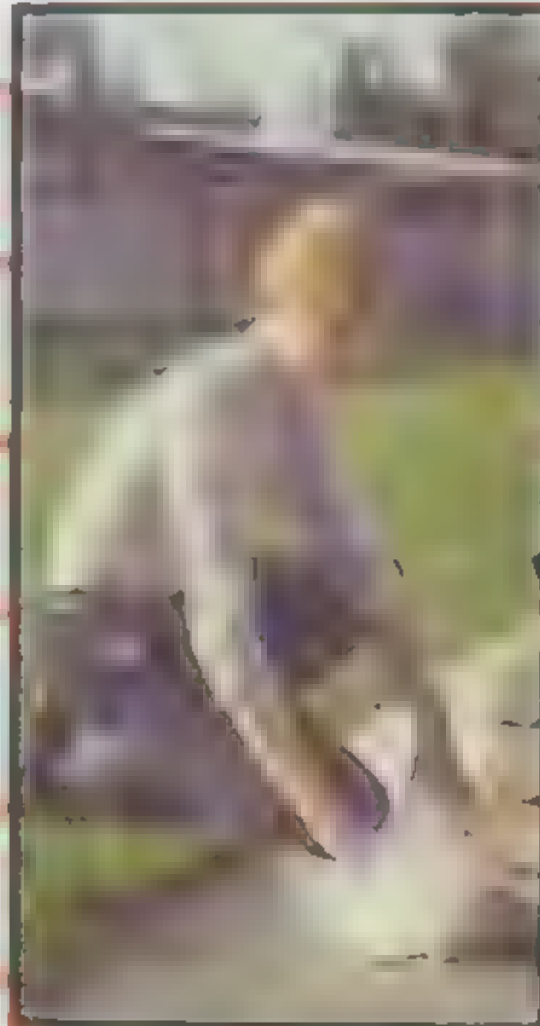

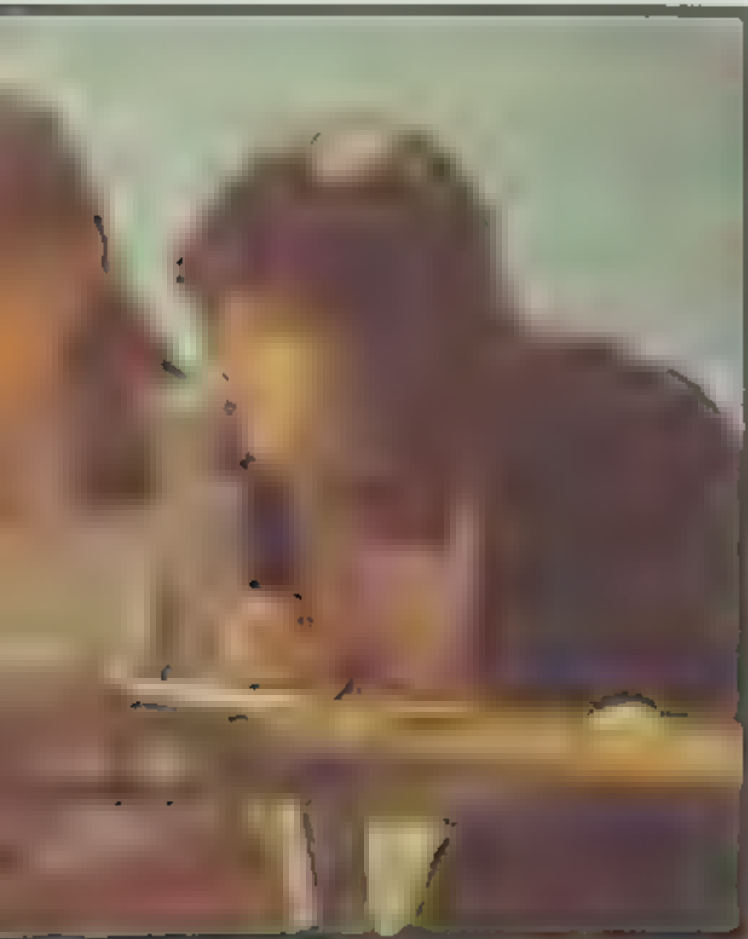

Colors of all sorts were the "in" thing, from bright reds, greens, and yellows, to soft pastels of pink, lavender, and blue. Plaids made a fabulous comeback on skirts and shirts, as well as pants and jackets.

Girls came back to school with fresh, new, short haircuts. No longer did parents have to nag their sons to get a haircut, because they were doing it on their own. The short cuts of the 50's could be seen at A.C.H.S. in the 80's.

This was a year for classics from decades back and they all mixed to make our 82-83 fashion.

That's Entertainment

A night out on the town can be an exciting time for many students.

Camarillo High School students did a variety of things for their entertainment.

In town, students could be entertained by going to movies, school activities, arcades, or attending parties with friends.

For some, Camarillo was not the place to find the excitement one was looking for. Students would hop into their cars and take off. A great number of students spent time in shopping malls, either browsing or just getting caught up in the social atmosphere. Others went to Los Angeles or Santa Barbara and saw their favorite group in concert. Many students could also be found dancing at various clubs and even church dances. Many went towards Ventura where they could run around the beach, spend time in thrift stores or go cruising along Main Street.

Whether in town or out, entertainment became an enjoyable way to spend a weekend after a tough week at school.

Scorps On Campus

From 8 A.M. To 3 P.M. There Is Never A Dull Moment at ACHS

In the early morning as the sun rose over Camarillo, students began to accumulate on campus. The early risers could be found doing homework or studying in the cafeteria. As the morning wore on, the halls filled up. The guys could be found standing on the so called "jock-wall", and the girls gossiping throughout the halls. There were also others (mainly freshmen) waiting outside their classes trying not to be late.

In between classes the halls became cluttered with socializing and people rushing to their lockers.

At lunch, the cafeteria would be a crowded mess, and the lines seemed never ending. Students could be found everywhere eating, studying or just talking.

As the final bell rang, the students would pour out of the classrooms. Wild freshmen hurled every object to reach the bus lines. Others rushed to the parking lot only to be caught up in the mad traffic.

Finally the school would quiet down awaiting the next day.

More Entertainment

Staying at home during free time may not be such a bad idea.

Many students found entertainment in their own homes. Students could be found glued to the tube watching their favorite old reruns, or recent movies on pay T.V. With the revolution of T.V. Video game units, students could play all types of games on their television. Other students stuck to their trusty stereo, listening to their favorite stations or best records. Still, the telephone let A.C.H.S. students reach out and touch someone, for sometimes hours at a time. Many students kept up the old pastime of baking while others spent their time eating.

These types of domestic activities proved that it wasn't necessary to spend a night on the town for entertainment.

Let's Dress-Up!

Sophisticated Scorpions Take Time Out To Dress-Up.

When you want to bring out a person's personality there's no better way than to have a dress up day. Dress up days like Halloween, Hawaiian, and hat day were very popular at ACHS. On Halloween students were seen dressed as strange monsters, cocktail waitresses, cartoon characters, and even a unicorn was seen. Hawaiian day brought out some very colorful and strange outfits. Colorful shirts, straw hats, leis, and even grass skirts were worn. Probably the most popular dress up day was hat day. Such hats as sombreros, construction helmets, baseball caps, indian war bonnets, and berets were worn. Dress up days were so popular even teachers were seen wearing their favorite outfit. During the year there were many more dress up days and each time more and more people got involved in the fun.

ACHS Hot Wheels

"Have car will travel" - or is it
"Have car will, have problems?"

Getting to school was one thing, but getting to school by driving was another. From Volkswagon to Van, Pinto to Porsche, students drove many different types of cars. Some students took pride in their vehicles and worked long hours to get them into perfect condition. A spruced up car was a hot item and received many appraising looks. However, other students didn't care about looks; to them cars were just a means of transportation.

Students who worked quite often put all their money into their "wheels", for owning a car was an expensive luxury. Owning a car proved very handy when cruising with friends.

Parking was a terrible hassle, especially to those who parked in the dirt lot. On rainy days, there was seldom a clean car in sight, and it was quite a task to pull a car from deep mud. Few students were lucky enough to get a space on the paved parking lot.

Though students could find other means of transportation nothing could compare to driving a car!

Double Lunch Week

Christmas Spirit Finds Its Way Into The Life Of ACHS Students

Double Lunch Week was a special time for many students at ACHS.

The week began with Santa Hat Day. Everyone seemed to get caught up in the spirit. The main hall was scattered with the familiar cap of Old St. Nick. On Tuesday everyone was dress up as Rudolf. Antlers and a red nose proved to be the perfect attire. Wednesday students wore red and green. The Christmas spirit could truly be seen on campus. The last day to dress up was Mistle Toe and Bow Day, a time for fun and maybe a little romance.

Not only were the students dressed with Christmas accessories, but teachers found that their classrooms were being covered in cheerful holiday decorations.

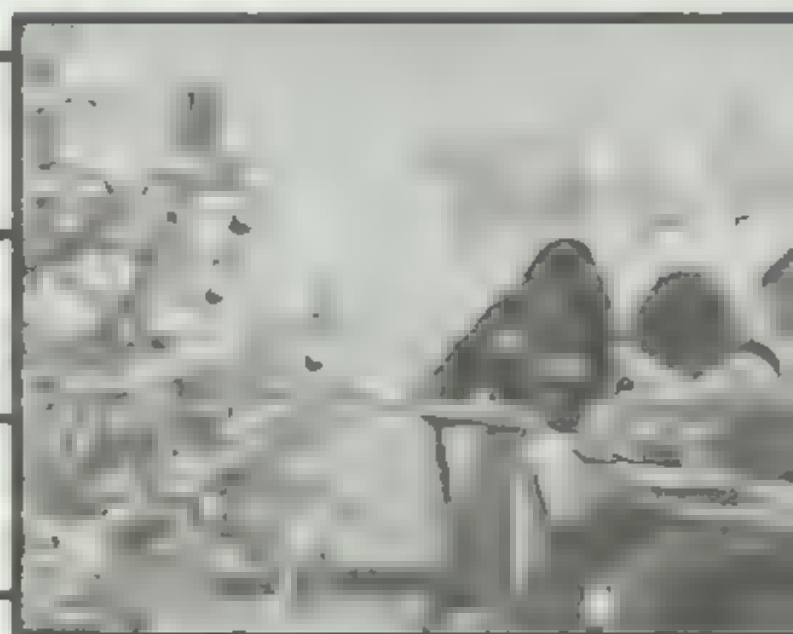

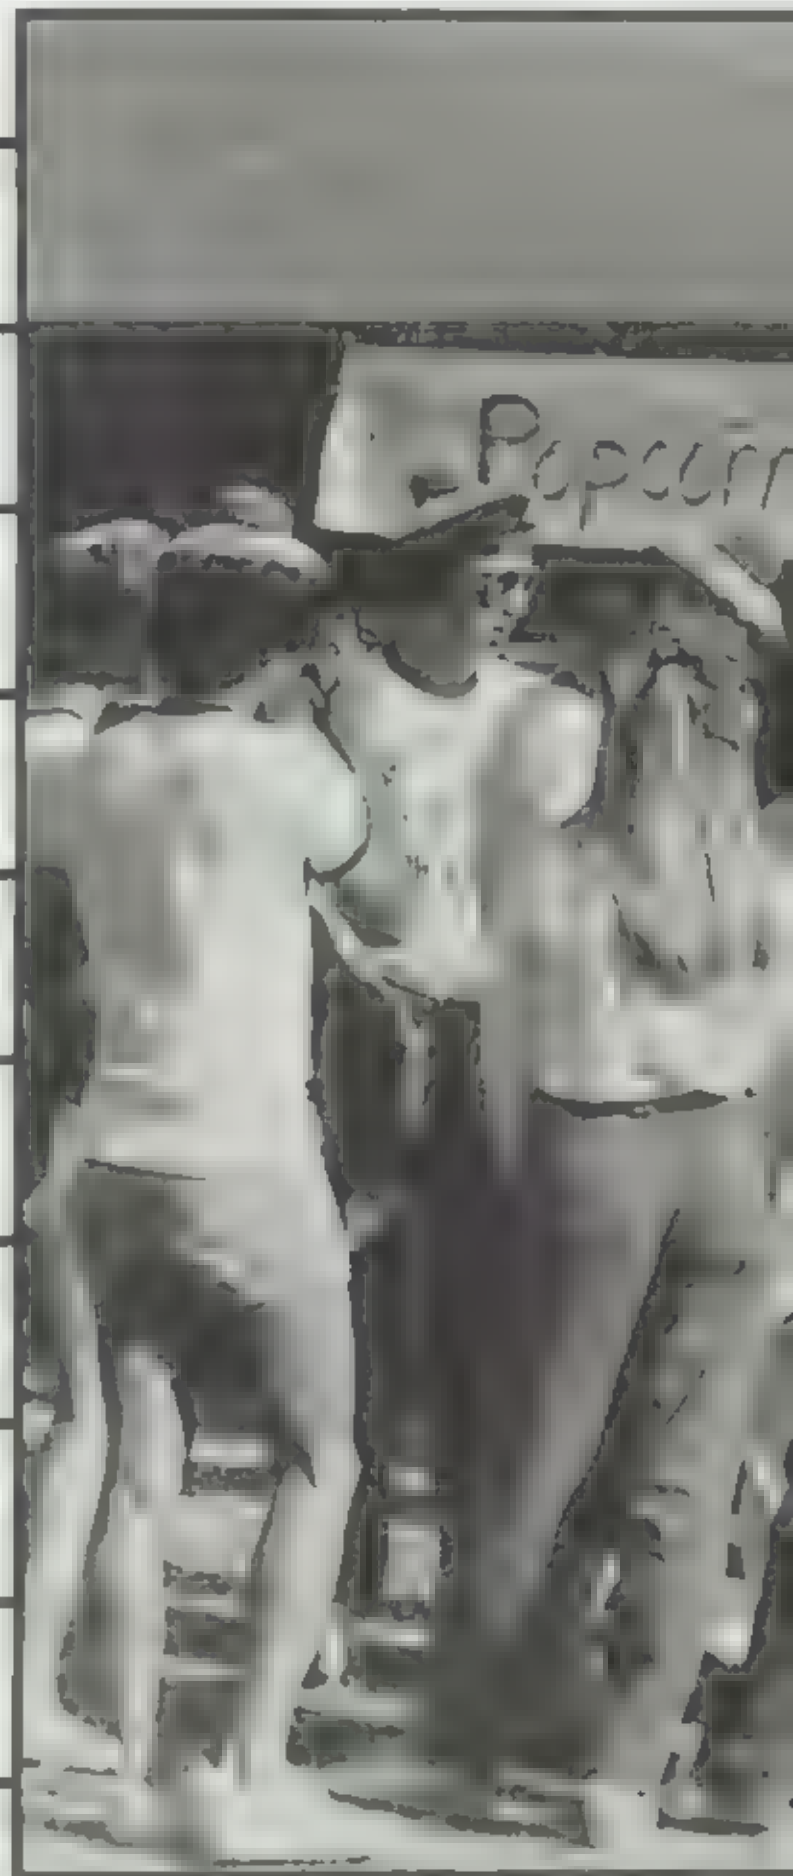

By Friday the campus glowed with Christmas spirit. Double lunch was a complete success, with tasty dishes and fun holiday games. What a great way to end the week, with vacation soon following!

Backwards Dance

Guys get a free night out from the girls at Camarillo High School.

The Keywanettes sponsored Backwards Dance has become a tradition at ACHS. It gives the students a chance to reverse roles and see how the other feels at the time of a dance.

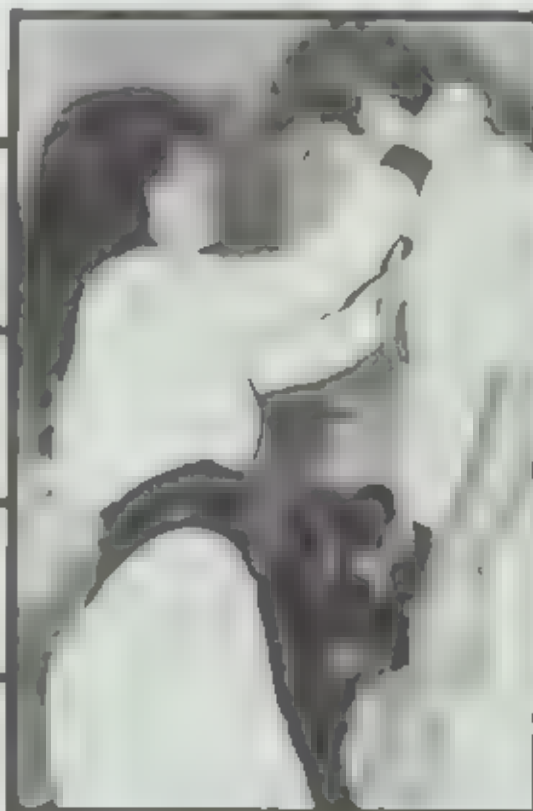

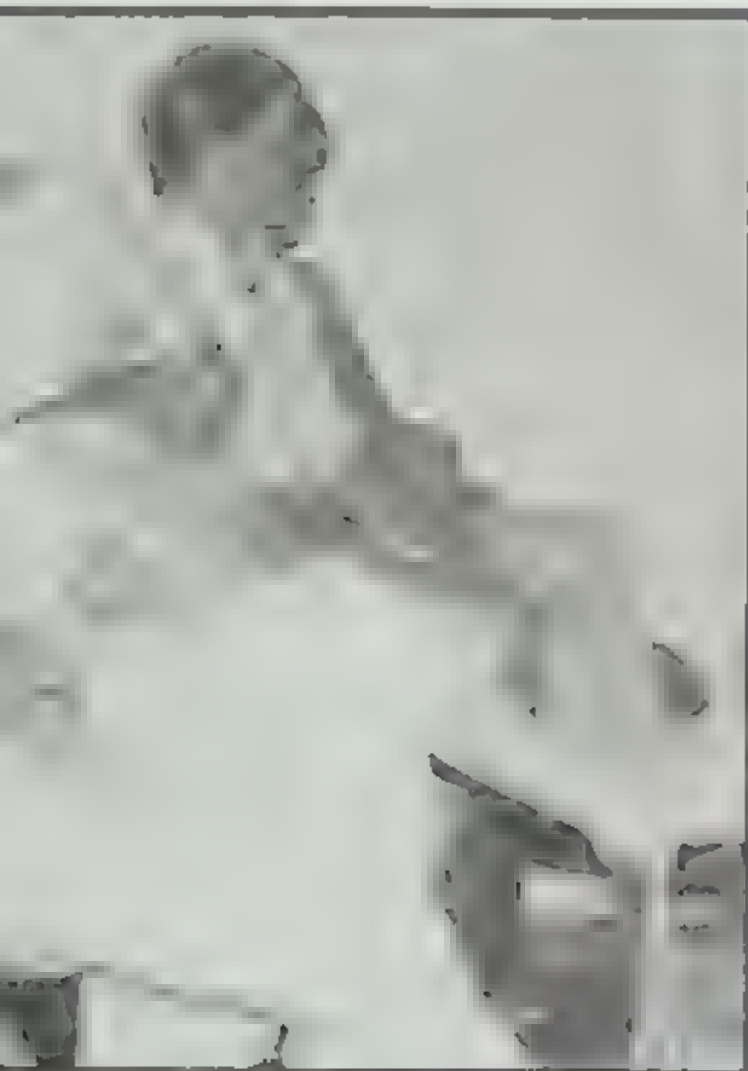

The festivities began with the nominations. This year the system was changed. The students from each class chose two candidates except the seniors, who chose four. The other two came from teachers and athletic teams. Freshman nominees; Corky Bizjack, Joey Howard, Chris Lillich, and Brant McBride. Sophomore nominees; Geoff Brand, Scott Cline, Mike Jenkins and Brendan Kinney. Junior nominees; Wally Bobkiewicz, Roland Macasieb, Bryan Paulson and Jeff Tackett. Senior/King nominees; Gil Banales, Wade Blair, Shawn Forster, Mike Murray, Scott Martin and Dan Soto.

The day of the dance was full of suspense. Who would claim the title of 1983 King? The winners were announced at a 50 minute rally. King, Gil Banales; Senior Prince, Mike Murray, Junior Prince, Wally Bobkiewicz; Sophomore Prince, Geoff Brand; and Freshman Prince Joey Howard

The big event finally began. The couples danced to the sounds of Rock Dodger. The dance, as always, was a great success!

Current Events

Camarillo students keep informed of news headlines

1982-1983 not only brought about many events at Camarillo High, but many events throughout the world

Princess Grace of Monaco, formerly Grace Kelley, died in a tragic auto accident. Other celebrities such as comedian John Belushi and singer Karen Carpenter also died this year. The popular T.V. show M.A.S.H. came to an end after 11 years of filming

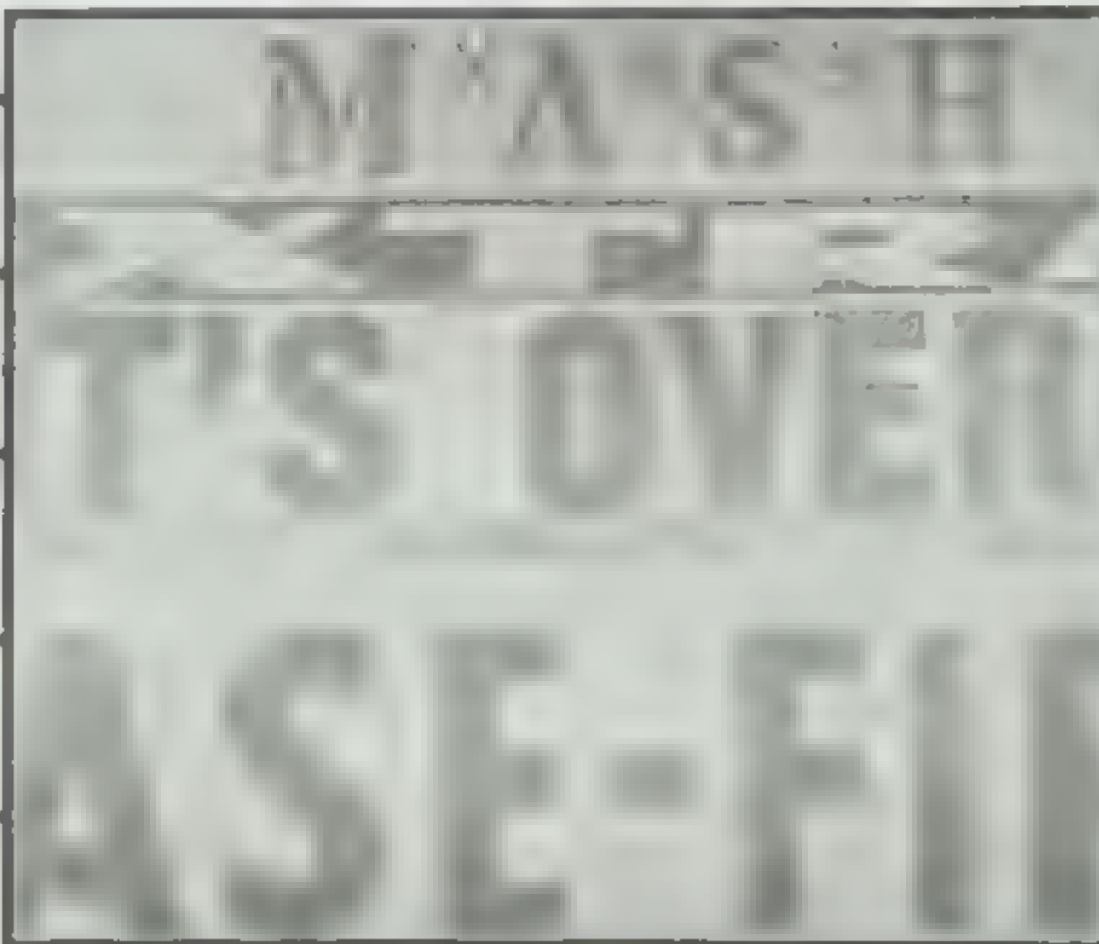

Strange deaths occurred

After news of several Tylenol related deaths, the drug was investigated throughout the United States, the cause of these deaths being Tylenol laced with cyanide. Over the winter Southern California was lashed by the worst storm in the area's history. Beaches, piers and beach front homes were ripped apart by large waves. Streets were flooded and mud buried highways, there was even a tornado in Los Angeles.

On the brighter side, Barney Clark survived the first artificial heart transplant. The Southland was blessed with the visit of Queen Elizabeth. In sports, a new professional football league was born, the USFL.

The beloved television show M.A.S.H. aired its last filming on February 28

Camarillo Community

Camarillo grows in industry, business and population.

Camarillo went through many changes this year. The changes benefited the community in many ways. For example, the gym, added to the Boys and Girls club, gave kids a place to express their abilities in sports. Another benefit for kids was the building of Las Colinas School in Mission Oaks.

Students of ACHS and residents of Mission Oaks were pleased at the completion of the Adolfo Road extension. It made it easier to travel from central to eastern Camarillo. The widening of 101 also made it easier and faster for Camarillians to travel.

Still another change for the better was the opening of many corporations in Camarillo this year. They gave it the opportunity for prosperity and recognition. The Mission Oaks Plaza, otherwise known as "the new Vons" made shopping a convience rather than a hassle. Also, it provided jobs for many ACHS students.

These changes proved to be profitable for the residents of Camarillo.

Although various problems continued to develop in the school's effort to provide a quality education, Camarillo High School students could still boast a better education than many of their counterparts elsewhere. In conclusion, it should be hoped that because of the education received here at Camarillo, the prospects for the students have been improved. Although Camarillo students may not realize it today, they will someday come to know that their lives had been shaped here in these classrooms.

Tradition Still Respected

A call for a "back to basics" education was heard across the nation, including Camarillo High. A series of test score declines prompted changes in certain classes. Teachers discovered that students were weak in vocabulary, so this was emphasized in English courses.

Classes touched on more than vocabulary, too. Grammar was stressed in some classes, and literature in others. Some teachers assigned the most favored of all projects - the term paper. These seemingly simple assignments often took much effort. English was certainly a vital part of our learning.

Mathematics was another vital subject. The "algebra experience" was shared by most students as they received formulas, rules, and theorems. After two years, some students went on to the challenge of trigonometry and calculus.

Science played a part in high school too. Biology students were easily spotted waving their insect nets. For others, there were chemistry and physics. Experiments were performed to show certain ideas.

Lastly, the social sciences and foreign language classes were valuable, for in different ways they gave knowledge of history and culture. This enabled students to broaden their viewpoints greatly.

Activities Add Variety

Education can be more than just simple reading, writing, and arithmetic. In fact, there is much room for other activities for the motivated student to explore.

For instance, music, art, and drama classes allowed students to develop and perfect their creative skills. But originality was not completely confined to these courses. Many other teachers demanded some kind of extra creativity in assignments, and some even went as far as requiring special projects in which the students could create some type of art form. Posters, illustrations for a paper, and oral reports were commonly assigned.

Sometimes the entire school benefited from the creativity of a few. The dedicated people who published the school newspaper, "The Stinger", and the literary magazine "Thoughtprints" spent much effort so that their fellow students could read something interesting.

Also, in the form of academic contests, Camarillo High was able to flex its intellectual muscles while competing against rival schools. The Academic Decathlon and the Knowledge Bowl were two such competitions.

Lastly, holidays had a special effect on creativity. As Christmas approached, many homerooms tried to brighten their classrooms up by adding various decorations. There was even a contest in the school for well decorated Christmas boxes.

Camarillo's 1982-1983 Academic Decathlon team performed well in intense competition, and Mark Artuso, Wally Bobkiewicz, Advisor Linda Valdez, Scott Yamaguchi, Mark Blattel, and Ben Jennett even found time to enjoy themselves

Studying

An Important Activity

A major goal of all teachers this year was to continue their efforts to encourage students to study, but some classes had less homework than others, and these classes achieved a little more popularity. However, most students had an English or math class in which homework was regularly assigned. Many were reminded that whether or not homework was completed could make or break their grades.

How people studied varied according to personalities and lifestyles. Studying had to compete with other activities like work, sports, and recreation. When studying, students took advantage of extra class time, the library, and the cafeteria in addition to their own homes. Every once in a while, some students found themselves burning the midnight oil so that they could be prepared for some difficult finals or a term paper deadline.

Complaints about the amount of studying were heard frequently, but those who tried found themselves rewarded. There is much truth in the saying that one gets out of high school about as much as what one puts in.

Business Finds A New Home

Camarillo High School continued to expand this year with the addition of a new building. This new building was devoted to the business classes, which enjoyed a good enrollment as students prepared themselves to enter the competitive world. These new surroundings were undoubtedly more pleasant than the older facilities, and students found that the atmosphere was easier to study in. Whether the classes were in typing, accounting, or computers, students were given a valuable opportunity to sharpen their skills for a business career.

Learning how to use an adding machine in accounting was a must for David Fukutomi.

Mr. Riley sees to it that his students become businesslike.

A New Environment

The effects of a recession stricken economy and reduced funding began to appear this year with greater impact, as many teachers found themselves without paper or the means to replace aging equipment or deteriorating textbooks. Camarillo High School lost several teachers in the budget crunch and more were expected to be let go. Rumors of budget cuts yet to come and creative sources of new funding provided a lively source of conversation among both students and teachers.

On the lighter side, there were other conditions besides finances that affected students this year. For example, days of unusual weather had great impact on students' concentration. An environment where learning was made more enjoyable by the teacher improved the quality of education.

Some fun provided a healthy learning environment for Kurt Wuest

Getting Ready For College

Many Camarillo students planned to attend college, that mysterious institution of higher learning. These people prepared in various ways: completing college-prep classes, talking with visiting college representatives, teachers, counselors, and friends in college; and taking the PSAT and SAT tests. The SAT tests are of great importance in college applications, and college-bound seniors accordingly readied themselves carefully for them. Others also applied for scholarships and other financial aid programs so that they could receive the best education possible. Interestingly, Camarillo continued to uphold its tradition of scoring well on the PSAT and SAT tests, which was certainly a tribute to the students and education of our high school.

Special Classes Prepare Students For The Future

Students interested in certain occupations were attracted to classes such as agriculture, drafting, electronics, and metal and wood shops. In these classes, students used their time to improve various abilities and gain important experience.

Some students made use of the Career Center and its large amounts of information to help them in deciding upon a specific career to pursue. Also, special programs such as ROP (Regional Occupational Program) and Jobs provided further alternatives for the student seriously desiring the practical training necessary for a useful job. Indeed, many students were glad that opportunities like these continued to be offered at Camarillo High.

Technology The New Education

Increasingly sophisticated technology began to appear at Camarillo High, not only as digital watches that students wore, but also as the calculators that students used to help solve difficult problems in math and science classes. Computers was a popular class as students tried to keep pace with the computerized world. Also, replacing the familiar film projector to some extent, videotape machines saw use this year as useful programs taped from television were made available for the student to learn from. These modern devices did much to make education more interesting, clear, and informative.

ACHS Sports Have Excellent Year

Camarillo High has always had a strong winning tradition in sports, but 1982-83 may have been the best year ever. Camarillo was near the top of the Marmonte league in almost every sport, and in some sports they were near the top of C.I.F. The year began with football and despite failed expectations and a poor record the Scorp showed great pride and never gave up. J.V. football ended the year with a perfect 10-0 record and great hopes for next year. Girls volleyball ended the season as one of the top teams in C.I.F. by advancing to the third round. In Boys basketball the talented and well coached Scorp made their way to the second round of the C.I.F. playoffs behind all C.I.F. performer Gil Banales. Boys and Girls soccer advanced to C.I.F., with boys soccer becoming co-champions! Boys baseball was almost as impressive, moving to the top of the league. Many other sports were almost as good, while others showed that despite being short on wins Scorpions are never short on pride. All in all it was a year of champions at ACHS.

Varsity football under coach Ken Wagner had a tough year, beginning with a tough loss to Buena in which the Scorps squandered a 10 point half time lead and finally lost the game. In the next game against Rio

Mesa the contest was scoreless through three quarters until Rio Mesa pulled off two quick T.D.'s and won the game. The following week Camarillo came from behind to beat Ventura. With a win to boost their morale, Camarillo won a close defensive battle against Simi. At this point in the year the Scorps had won two in a row and looked good. The Scorps then went on to lose their next 6 games and finished the year

It was a disappointing season for the Scorps, but a lot of good things came out of the year. Senior standout players for the Scorps were flanker Wade Blair, linebackers Craig Crenshaw, and Paul Wait, defensive back Shawn Forster, offensive lineman Scott Hughes, and quarterback Gary Wagner. Junior standouts were receiver Tom LeGassik, running backs LeRoy Hairston and Ed Palmer, quarterback Sean Lang, and tackle Mike Smith. With these juniors and many upcoming sophomores the Scorps can look forward to a great next year.

Camarillo Varsity Boys Cross Country, under the leadership of coach Mike Smith, worked hard to achieve the excellence that the team has acquired in the past. This year was no exception. The team did grueling workouts that consisted of running to the beach and up the grade. Early in the season, team commitment was lacking. But that problem was soon solved and the team finished with each member posting their best times of the year. They finished fourth in the Marmonte League competition.

The team was lead by 4-year letterman Eric Reynolds who finished the season undefeated.

Eric went on to win the CIF-4A Southern Section Championships and Kinney National Championships in Florida. Overall, the team did well. There were three returning lettermen and the rest of the team consisted of new members that pushed the team to excel to great heights.

The Camarillo High School girls Cross Country team had a pretty good season this year. With the small outcome of only 8 girls, the group had to put forth much effort to keep the small team in the league. The last meet, which was league finals, was the best race for most of the runners. Everyone bettered their times from a minute to a minute and a half. The girls varsity placed 4th in the league of 8! The girls averaged out how many miles they ran over the season and came up with a rough estimate of 250 miles!

J.V. cross country in the past has consisted of very few members. But this year there were some sparks within the school that brought out a full team. Although the team was young, the participants showed promise that will definitely benefit the sport in the years to come.

The team worked hard to show that they were no exception to their varsity members. Although they started the year off lacking experience, practice and commitment was a motto that was proven to be beneficial. They finished with each member confident that they'd be back next year to work harder than before.

This team went on runs that were never thought possible and were left in amazement to find that they could finish each and every one of them. They were truly known as a team that would never quit.

At the beginning of the 1982 girls volleyball season, nobody thought that the team would place third in the Marmonte League, and as the Scorps entered the CIF playoffs nobody thought they would advance to the third round. After downing some top Southern California Schools in the playoffs, the Scorps were finally defeated by Long Beach Wilson. Most of the success of the team has to be attributed to the fine team effort of the girls, and the winning attitude brought in by first year coach Bob Cornelius. It was a great season for a great team.

The Camarillo Varsity Girls tennis team of the 1982-83 year did exceptionally well for it being what you call, a building year. They had one excellent player back again for her second year. Krista Jensen again proved she could out do anyone in the Marmonte league. The team only lost 4 games the whole season and them to only 2 teams, Thousand Oaks and Westlake.

With members participating from each grade, it helped to make up a team that worked together to attain a goal of participating in the first round of the C.I.F. Playoffs.

Girls junior varsity tennis had an outstanding season. The team finished up with a record of 9 wins, 1 tie, and 2 losses, beating several top rated teams, which placed them second in the Marmonte league.

Their fine record was due to much hard work and practice. With the guidance of coach, Colleen Conway, and pointers from assistant coach, Teresa Isom, the team concentrated on the basics of the game. The J.V. players consistently worked on drills to improve their serve, forehand, backhand, volleys and strategy in doubles play. With the talent of this junior varsity squad, the upcoming varsity team should prove to be one of the best.

BANALES LEADS TEAM TO SECOND ROUND

For the third season in a row, the Scorpions advanced to the C.I.F. playoffs behind the superlative coaching of John Harbour. The Scorps started off the year by winning the consolation championship of the Beverly Hills tournament. The lone setback in the tourney came at the hands of Fremont High in double overtime. The Scorpions then demolished Calabasas, and took apart Rio Mesa in non-league games. Next came the First Annual Oxnard District tournament. The Scorps met the C.I. Raiders in the championship and won the game, thereby winning the tournament. In the Kiwanis tournament, the Scorps had to settle for the consolation championship, but were pleased with their performance. The Scorpions finished a great non-conference season and were now ready for the Marmonte League. They started league off

- 3 LeRoy Hairston looks to drive the lane
- 4 Gil Banales concentrates at the foul line
- 5 Jeff Hamrick lets loose an important free throw slowly but then began to pick up momentum after an exciting overtime win over Westlake, who was tied for first. The team ended the season atop the Marmonte League. The Scorps were led by one of the top players in the area, Gil Banales, who averaged in double figures almost every night. Also playing great basketball were forwards John Page, Jamie Westbrooks, and Eric Bergh. All three dominated the middle. Guards Jeff Hamrick and sophomore Steve Banales also contributed, dealing out assists and scoring. Also playing well for the Scorps were LeRoy Hairston and Brian Bilups. These players along with others helped supply depth off the bench for the Scorps.

The Varsity Girls Basketball team had an exciting and successful year. Under the leadership of coaches Patty Resetar and Tom Jevens, the team had its best league record in years.

Led by the Farrel sisters, Kris and Karen, and Lisa Rose, the Scorp Girls improved tremendously this season. The team was helped greatly by its two outstanding sophomores, Tanya Dupont and Sharon Stewart Toward the end of the season the team started "to feel as a team." Their hard work and intelligence began to pay off, giving great encouragement to Coaches Resetar and Jevens. All taken into consideration, the Scorpion girls are looking at a great season next year

GIRLS WORK HARD TO GAIN EXPERIENCE

The Girls J.V. Basketball team had more than their share of problems this year. They began their season with a fairly inexperienced team. They practiced hard and felt close as a team but just couldn't get it all together to pull off a perfect season. All though they didn't win, they felt it was a successful season. The girls became united as a team and tried hard to make it work

Some of the outstanding players that looked promising for the future were Jeanett Medina, Bernadette Arnold, and Line Spencer. "Although we didn't do that great, we always came close. We worked hard and had a good time," said Maria Christonot. The girls worked hard keeping the image of ACHS at top notch perfection.

Traditionally, ACHS has always had a strong wrestling team, and this year was no exception. The Scorpions had quality wrestlers at every weight class, and it showed as the season progressed. Coach Charlie Festerling's mat men finished the non-league schedule and were then ready for league. After beating Westlake in a dual-match, the Scorpions faced Newbury Park with a chance to move into first place. The Scorpions were defeated despite great individual efforts by wrestlers such as Paul Arbon and Matt Hickman. The Scorps finished the season near the top and were outstanding in the league finals and CIF sectional tournament. Standout grapplers for Camarillo were Roland Macasieb, Eric Bartels, Paul Arbon, and heavyweight Matt Hickman. Matt is one of the better wrestlers in the county. Another standout for the Scorpions is Sam Bushman. Although he is blind, Sam is one of the best wrestlers in the Marmonte league

J.V. MATMEN PLACE IN LEAGUE FINALS

Hard work and dedication paid off for the J.V. Scorpions in 1983. The Scorpions faced tough competition all year and usually came out on top. The Scorpions excelled in league competition, finishing the year with a fine record and placing high in the league finals. Coach Spahn should be proud of the young matmen who wrestled with a great deal of pride. Wrestlers who should have a bright future in Varsity Wrestling are J.J

Marriot, Rudy Lopez, and Blane Wingle. Other top wrestlers were Lomuel "Peppi" Pedro, and Art Lemos. These wrestlers and others added to the success of the J.V. team

When the soccer season started, Coach Geoff Lillich knew he had some fine returning letterman, and some fine players up from the J.V.'s. The season began with a tie against Santa Clara and then a big win over Rio Mesa. The Scorps rolled off a winning streak before losing in a league game to Westlake. The team then started another winning streak which brought their record to the best in the county and a number seven ranking in CIF-SS 4A. The winning streak finally ended at the hands of Simi Valley. The Scorps won their last game and then headed into the CIF playoffs. Top players for the Scorpi-

GOOD SEASON

Great teamwork and coaching paid off for the young J.V. soccer team. The Scorps had a good preseason and then went into Marmonte League action. Although they lost a few games, the Scorps kept their composure and had a fine season. Some great players from this team will move to Varsity next year to join the fine seniors to make an outstanding team.

For the the first time ever at Camarillo High School there was a girls soccer team. Most of the girls had played many years of soccer in the past and therefore had great experience. The girls started the year with some big wins, but they also lost a few. They made a good showing in league and made it clear that they belonged. The girls soccer team showed they will be a good

Varsity baseball had an excellent start in the early spring. Many returning varsity players from last year including Jeff Tackett, John Gleason, Terry Nelson and other seniors like Jimmy Powell, Gary Wagner, and Jaime Westbrooks. The Scorps excelled in both league and non-league play.

With pitchers Terry Nelson and Junior Salomon, the Scorps started off with a record of 5-0. Losing their sixth game to cross-town rivals, Rio Mesa, 6-4, the Scorps took on Simi Valley but dropped to them.

The varsity team, led by Coach Glenn, looked toward the CIF playoffs as a realistic goal. Hard work paid off in every position. The talent on the team was immense. The team had good cooperation, excellent hitting and pitching, and most definitely playing

After losing many stars from last year's team, Coach Herb Potter looked as though he had a rebuilding year ahead of him. After the first few meets of the year, it looked as though it would be more of a team effort than last year.

In their opener the Scorps defeated Westlake; after that win, Coach Potter seemed very optimistic about the year and was sure there would be many more wins. Although this team was not loaded with stars, there was at least one. Eric Reynolds, maybe the top two miler in the US, led the team. Eric, who earlier in the year won the Kinney National Invitational Cross-Country Championship, looked as though he would dominate his opponents. Other standouts such as Scott Clark and Brendan Kinney looked very good also. The team performed well and really used a full team effort.

Domke was very optimistic about the season, and player Steve Hotelling said, "We are going to go all the way and win CIF. The team relied on great individual talent and also great teamwork. Star players Al Vergara, Doug Richardson, and Vic

Students Involved With Clubs

Upon entering high school, and all four years thereafter, students were bombarded with commands to "get involved"! Well-meaning ASB'ers and other active students told their fellow Scorpions to show their spirit by participating in sports, or by joining a club. Although several clubs received little recognition and had few members, their role in the school was critical. Not all students could be athletes, but anyone could join a club. Students who may have felt outcast or friendless found their place in one of the many clubs that catered to a variety of interests. There was something for everyone.

For the outgoing, organizations were designed that allowed them to voice the opinions and feelings of the student body. Members of these groups learned how to handle the responsibility of planning school activities and had a good time while doing it.

Also for the outgoing were the clubs involved with the world of entertainment. Aspiring actors, singers, and musicians practiced and improved their artistic skills under the guidance of their advisers.

For those who wanted to continue their classroom learning outside of the classroom, there were language, business, and scholastic clubs.

Exotic cultures and foreign traditions became familiar to the students who explored them in the language clubs.

A world of business, full of competition and reward, was opened up for students who took part in the business clubs.

Scholastic clubs gave members a goal to work toward in their school work and improved chances of getting into a good college.

Pep Squad's Spirit Brings Crowd Respons

In between cheers, the pep squad stands at attention during a home football game. This was something that they were required to do, although sometimes they could be found tooling around."

JV cheerleaders, praised by advisor Andrea Colbaugh as extremely talented, put together another great pyramid.

Freshmen cheerleaders, (as all freshmen do), got a little bit of jeering but managed to keep smiling.

Hours of practice and hard work paid off as the 1982-83 Pep Squad busted loose better and brighter than ever. Football and basketball fans were treated to the skilled moves of Frosh, Junior Varsity and Varsity cheerleaders as well as Songleaders.

After the traditional fight song, cheerleaders and songleaders performed special routines at rallies, creating a feeling of spirit and unity for the entire student body. Songleaders created and performed a variety of routines, including one to Kenny Loggins' "Don't Fight It" and another to "Kids in America"

by Kim Wilde.

Pep Squad members indicated that they enjoyed what they were doing because of the fun and excitement involved. "We love it! It's great! We represent the school and try to be a united squad," said songleaders Laura Rasey and Karen Doran.

Mishaps did occur, however, when two members Kathy Curry and Laura Rasey were injured upon falling from pyramids. But, fortunately, these setbacks failed to dampen their spirits.

For the first time in the school's history, A.S.B. was able to send four members to a leadership camp at U.C. Santa Barbara in August, which taught them how to promote school spirit and get students involved. A S.B.ers came home with many new ideas as well as a lot of fun-filled memories.

First semester A.S.B. was kept busy with a flurry of activities including pep rallies, lunch rallies, and dress-up days such as Hawaiian day, hat day, blue and white day and Halloween dress-up day

Students got into the Christmas spirit during Double Lunch Week, which sported the theme Lisa Culberson discusses an upcoming activity with ASB'ers. As ASB secretary, Lisa's job included keeping track of the goings on at meetings.

Marti Baker and Melissa Jordan "go Hawaiian". Hawaiian day found many students wearing fluorescent flowered tops and bright leis.

For Homecoming nominations was changed to give football players and teachers a chance to express their preferences. A.S.B. also co-sponsored a Sadie Hawkins Dance with the Junior class in November.

A.S.B. concessions installed a long-awaited snack machine in the office quad to accommodate students with "the munchies."

A.S.B. members were allowed to "Take the Burrito Challenge" as the district food planners treated them to three different kinds of burritos to see which brand they liked best.

In addition to new responsibilities and new offices, ASB began a new tradition. Each student was required to undertake a major semester project to repair, improve, or beautify the campus.

An old tradition that continued was that of the rallies. Rallies proved a good way to break up a monotonous day and included a variety of different activities, including a parking lot raffle, a movie from CamFel productions, routines performed by cheerleaders and songleaders, and class competitions.

Senior class president Donna De Clue and ASB president, Steve, conduct the auctioning for the pie-in-the-face contest

Boosting school spirit occupied a great deal of ASB members' time, as it had during the first semester, but a new ASB president presided over second semester activities. Steve Pinto stepped into the shoes once filled by Craig Crenshaw. However, this in no way meant that Crenshaw's duties had ended; he faced the responsibility of training and helping the new president.

Other ASB offices were filled with new members, as well, and although the election was plagued by a rather small turnout, they produced genuinely enthusiastic and eager officers.

Unlike previous years, ASB's membership included "members at large" from various clubs and organizations on campus. The step was taken to create more input from the student body and to improve communications between the clubs and ASB.

Another change in ASB was the voting process for the Backward's Dance Court. Like Homecoming, the teachers were allowed one nominee and the athletic teams were allowed one nominee. Junior class president, Wally Bobkiewicz said that this change was made because it was felt that more representation was needed and the previous election was unfair.

At rallies, class competitions determined which class had the most spirit. Sophomores displayed exceptional enthusiasm in these contests, along with the seniors. Freshman usually only faced humiliation at rallies, but they handled it gracefully.

Dance, whether stag or not, attracted a large number of Scorpions who wanted to get out of the house and have some fun. Valentine's Day was celebrated with a stag dance featuring Papa Doo Run Run, but the Prom remained the big event of the year. This prom was different from others in the area of planning. Several committees others in the area of planning. Several committees worked together to stage this extravaganza. Their foresight made putting on the prom an organized and orderly event. Steppin Out In Style was the theme.

For those who wanted to show their spirit in "creative" ways, there were special days. Nerd Day and Tourist Day brought out some interesting and imaginative outfits

Second period will be remembered as decision-making time. It was during this time that Homecoming queens were elected, Backwards Dance nominees were chosen, and representatives for the House of Representatives were selected.

Although the selection of members for the House may have seemed rather casual and unimportant at the time, it was actually rather significant. Representatives bridged the gap between the students and the administration and the gap between the students and ASB.

This organization allowed students to assist in making the decisions that affected them. Instead of sitting around, moaning and groaning about the lack of dances or the cafeteria situation, they could voice their opinions and maybe solve a few problems.

Those who may have been too shy or too busy to run for an ASB office or class office, found their place in the House of Representatives. Not only did the House benefit its members; it was a great boon to the student body, as well. Through the House they could have their gripes, wants, and ideas brought out into the open.

Club Presidents Jointly Plan Activities

Kristin Kelley, Allison Coleman, Bill Hood, Lili Wong, Chuck McCann, Chet Warwick, and Wally Bobkiewicz work on a theme for the upcoming Double Lunch Week.

ice-president of ASB, Kristin Kelley held the job of ICC president first semester. Arlene Macaseib held this position.

ICC's main goal was improved communications and togetherness. ICC, or the Inter-Club Council, consisted of the presidents of all the clubs and organizations on campus. Although not an active club, ICC held an important place in school life. Through this club, all of the different groups on campus could get together and plan special events or work out problems.

Double Lunches were the major projects for this organization. Members would meet and decide table locations for clubs and which types of food or other products would be sold by whom.

Although Double Lunches seemed to be one big money-maker for clubs, it was often difficult to make profit. With so many booths to choose from, some booths had a hard time attracting customers. Even so, just having a booth out there was good for the clubs. It gave members a common purpose to work for and exposed other students to all of the various clubs that were available to them.

October provided a new beginning for the ACHS band. New uniforms in a Spanish design were finally acquired by the band after ten years of wearing the old uniforms. These blue and white uniforms came complete with blue capes lined with red material and red flares in the pant legs. Money made at the Thursday night Bingo games and a multitude of fundraisers went toward the purchase of the uniforms.

Armed with their new look and revived spirit, the band experienced a spectacular, award-filled season.

Band Earns The Title "Pride Of Camarillo"

Band drummers march in time as they proudly represent the ACHS spirit of excellence

Band really "struts its stuff" enthusiastically in front of the crowd during the half-time show. At all home games, the band displayed how well it could perform and greatly boosted the spirits of the ACHS football fans

In addition to parades, the band also participated in field competitions, "Band Day" at Disneyland, and opening ceremonies at the Adolfo Road bridge.

Band members attributed their successful year to increased student body support. "People stayed during half-time to listen to the band," said Drum Major, Dave Granger. And ASB asked them to play at almost every rally. This added lift was a great boon to band members.

One of the year's highlights for the band was the hosting of their second annual ACHS Field Tournament. Bands from all over California came to compete in this event, as well as one band from Las Vegas. Unlike last year, the sky was free of rain clouds. The beautiful weather and the several talented participants made the day a success. Band members were complimented on the efficiency of the event.

During the first semester as a marching band, members spent zero and first periods practicing and polishing their performances every morning.

Leadership: A Lesson Learned Well By All

Leaders: Greg Gladstone, Amy Fukatomi, Sheryl Smith, Tammy Howe, Dave Granger, and Carmen Falso provided guidance and a good example for other members.

ACHS banner carriers proudly carry their banner as they precede the band down the parade route

Everyone remains fairly calm and somewhat collected as last-minute instructions and final preparations are made Leadership and responsibility are two vitally important qualities that people strive to attain. Band assisted in instilling these qualities into its participants. Not only did sectional leaders learn to handle the tasks set before them, but also those that they led.

Band members couldn't be late when the time came to leave for a competition; too many people depended on them. Band members couldn't neglect practices, or they would find themselves unprepared when the call to march came around.

This pressure to be reliable and dedicated sometimes caused friction between leaders and the other members, but the problems were always worked out.

Successfully overcoming the obstacles and barriers that stood in their way gave band members a new maturity and helped them grow. Together, they accomplished a great deal and were better people for it.

Sharing the band experience together, resulted in the formation of several friendships and even some romantic attachments. Band will be remembered for being hard work, fun, and rewarding, overall.

Pageantry Units Add Style to Performances

With smiles on their faces, the drill team exhibits the unity and togetherness that was accomplished only after several lengthy practices. Their dedication paid off in the form of several trophies

Being in the right place at the right time is the immediate goal of drill team members as they go through a routine at the Camarillo Christmas Parade

Marching with confidence and pride, Sheryl Smith fulfills her obligation as captain of the drill team

Musicians compose only half marching band. And while good music is essential, pageantry units add that certain flare Drill team and tall flags make up the pageantry units. These all-girl squads started the year with a goal. This goal was to promote enthusiasm, spirit, self-esteem, appreciation, fun, and responsibility. To achieve this goal, the girls had to put in hours of hard labor. People failed to realize all the time and dedication that it took to be part of a marching unit.

During the week of a performance, they practiced

Monday through Friday, 7:00 to 8:00 before school, 9:00 to 10:05 during second period PE, and after school 3:00 until 4:30. In addition, Monday nights were spent practicing from 6:00 until 8:30.

During the winter, the marching unit worked in correlation with the band for about twelve hours a week. The football field served as a practice arena where they learned field patterns and rehearsed for half-time shows.

In competition, the flags competed to Hot Lunch Jam from Fame and the drill team competed to Kenny Loggins' Don't Fight It.

Flags Highlight Season With Claremont Victory

Rene and Todd jointly discuss the contents of a selection that Todd has just completed reading

Todd King, a sophomore, reads through and critiques a short story which was submitted by a student

Miss Harriet Feather goes over the rating procedure with staff members, Rene Grady and Todd King

Every year, the student body receives a pleasantly shocking, or rather eye-opening, surprise in the form of Thoughtprints. This literary fully lived up to its name; it, quite simply, printed students' thoughts.

Thoughtprints has always and continued to reveal unknown talent among ACHS students. Many people who appeared shy and introverted on the surface, expressed themselves through the art of writing. They exhibited a proficiency with writing not often associated with high school students Thoughtprints' short stories and poems were contributed by any who wished to take part in the project. From those submitted, the best works were chosen for inclusion in the magazine. This decision was made by the Thoughtprints staff.

Although small, the staff managed to get the job done. They met after school and read through all of the available material, which had been retyped and left anonymous. They then proceeded to rate the work on a scale of one to ten. By this method and with a lot of hard work, Thoughtprints was produced.

Sandy Lee, Lori Arnold, and Lisa Shields receive a critique upon finishing their scene during class

A group of hopeful actors and actresses and some students who just wanted to have a little fun comprised the "motley crew" known as the Drama Club. Mrs. Irene Tolman's first period drama class provided the members for this club which included everything from beginning drama students to "old pros."

Drama club allowed the "old pros" to sharpen their acting skills while teaching newcomers the basics. Although members did not stage a major production, they did put on a "Best Scenes" night, featuring the outstanding scenes from the class

Drama Club scholarships were given out to the superior performers in this event.

Outside of the classroom, Drama club members attended activities which enabled them to witness the acting talents of others. They viewed television tapings of shows such as Star of the Family, Different Strokes, Family Feud, and One Day at a Time.

Members felt that drama was "basically a fun thing", as Dave Morris put it, but there's no doubt that the lessons they learned in drama will serve them well later on in their lives.

It was 7.30 A.M., Saturday, December 4. Most ACHS students were lying in bed enjoying their day off, but not all. A small group of Speech Club members were on their way to another tournament. At these tournaments, students competed against schools from all over California and had the chance to show off their skills as debaters, dramatic speakers, and humorous speakers. Although quite small in number as compared to their opponents, ACHS speakers "held their own", always taking home trophies.

The UCLA Invitational started the year off for this club, followed by Westlake, Cal Poly, Simi, Royal, Cal Lutheran, Camarillo, Districts, State Qualifiers, and State Finals in San Diego.

Competing at tournaments taught Speech Club members that speaking in front of people doesn't have to be a frightening experience; it can be rewarding and extremely enjoyable. Speech Club also instilled a sense of responsibility and self-reliance in its members. Most of all, this club exposed speakers to new situations and enabled them to make numerous friends who shared their same interest.

Karen Ruby and Dori Frost take part in the discussion about what to do with the proceeds from the recent Backwards Dance that they sponsored

Sherry Louck leans over to share a joke with a fellow Keywanette member during a Keywanette meeting

March was a busy month for the Keywanettes, an all-girl service club sponsored by the Kiwanis Club of Camarillo. Their task was to stage the Backwards Dance during this time. To prepare for this event, the club held a car wash, a candy sale, and sold Turkey-Grams in November. With proceeds from these events, they hired a band, sold tickets, and decorated the gym for the dance.

Unlike other clubs on campus, the Keywanettes' projects are for the benefit of their fellow clubs. They serve the school by donating money to various clubs and by giving their members a chance to help others while having a good time.

Keywanettes got a chance to achieve a goal which one member stated was, "To do service to the community, and to meet new people." In this, they were all successful.

Keywanettes was another one of the clubs which educated while providing a good time. Members learned the value of helping others and the value of hard work.

Key Club had many members who held prominent positions in the Key Club Organization. Among these were Gene Richardson, Mark Blattell, and Larry Richardson.

Gene, a former Lieutenant Governor, was elected Governor of the California, Nevada, Hawaii District. This noteworthy accomplishment took place in the month of March during a District meeting in San Diego.

Mark Blattell held the office of Lieutenant Governor of Division # 42. This division covers all the Ventura County and all of Santa Barbara County.

Larry Richardson, a freshman, was elected as next year's Lieutenant Governor. He was elected at the Regional Conclave in February in San Fernando. He will also be covering the Ventura and Santa Barbara counties.

Having such a high quality club earned the ACHS Key Club a distinguished honor. In January, they were featured on the "Eye on L.A." television program, a show devoted to highlighting interesting and special occurrences in and around Los Angeles.

Vince Leon-Guerrero, Vice-President of Key Club, contributes an idea during one of the Monday night club meetings.

District Governor Gene Richardson discusses International business with Key Club Lt. Governors at Summer Board Meeting.

A major Key Club project during the second half of the year was their membership drive. This "recruitment" was inspired by visits with various other Key Clubs in Southern California. During these visits, ACHS Key Club members witnessed better and more efficient methods of running a Key Club, which they tried to incorporate into their own club.

Visiting other clubs wasn't the only way Key Clubbers strove to improve their group; they also attended conferences. In April, they attended a large 3-day conference in Sacramento. Members looked forward to this conference all year long. They met new people, gathered fresh ideas, and, most of all, had a fantastic time.

This event culminated a year dedicated to preserving and enforcing the fine reputation that the Key Club has enjoyed. Members felt pride in being part of the organization and knew that they were playing an important part in both the community and the school. "It makes you realize how important it is to help others", one member stated.

Key Club's Projects Benefit March Of Dimes

Scott Yamaguchi serves as temporary secretary during Scott Faul's absence from a meeting

Key Club, an all-male service club sponsored by the Kiwanis Club of Camarillo, continued its tradition of serving others. A number of projects and fundraisers were undertaken by members in order to raise money for the March of Dimes Foundation and other worthy causes.

Early in the school year, they organized a bowl-a-thon which took place at the Camarillo Bowl. Pledges from this event along with donations gathered by going door-to-door and standing in front of local businesses, brought in about $1,000 for the March of Dimes.

This club also sponsored a Night at the Spot, a local video arcade, to raise money for the club.

At Homecoming time, Key Club members were kept busy, selling and delivering Homecoming grams in addition to selling carnations at the Homecoming game. They also directed traffic at homecoming games to control the hectic post-game confusion.

At the Double Lunch in December, they sold their famous teriyaki which has become a tradition. "Students look forward to that", said President, Che Warwick.

Key Club's membership included several prominent ACHS students such as world-reknowned cross country runner, Eric Reynolds and Key Club Governor of the district, Gene Richardson. "That just shows the excellence of the present ACHS Key Club", said Warwick

Members of this club felt that it was very valuable. Said one member, "It teaches you responsibility and gets people together." "It's a very active club in school and community projects," added another.

However, Key Club did more than just work; they had picnics where members got together to play a few games, such as football and frisbee, eat some good food, and just have a good time. These picnics gave Key Clubbers an opportunity to get to know each other better and to become closer friends. One member said, "Picnics were a time to let off steam and enjoy good food and each other's company. They also helped increase Key Club unity." Another member, Steve Hotelling, said, "We really have a lot of fun. Picnics unify the members, promote spirit, and give everyone a chance to relax."

"It's a good alternative to Key club." These are the words of Leo club president, Bill Hood. As president, Bill was in charge of a group of guys who were known for always having a good time, but never forgot their duty to help out in the community and at school.

As for having a good time, Leo club members organized several trips and activities. During ski season, they took a trip to Snow Summit. Later in the year, being the true outdoorsmen that they were, they went on a camping trip to Lake Nacimiento. These trips were basically just for fun, but club members also travelled to Leo club conventions.

Held in Bakersfield and Morro Bay, these conventions gave Leo club members from all over California, the chance to find out what other clubs were doing. During the three days spent at convention, members formed panels and discussed Leo club activities.

Members of this club included guys who were kind of crazy, but genuinely devoted to doing something good for their school and their community. Each year, the new members of this club go through a small "ceremony" to introduce them to the ways of the club.

Leo Club Members And Community Benefit

Fundraising activities were a large part of the Leo club projects. All of the money raised at these affairs went toward community services

At Double Lunch, students were treated to the famous Leo club "virgin" Margaritas, and at the Christmas Parade, they sold hot dogs. In April, members took part in a flea market in order to raise money

With these funds, Leo club members performed various community and school services. At Leisure Village, they installed smoke alarm systems for the senior citizens. On campus, they put in a lawn sprinkling system in the patch of grass located across from the new buildings.

By doing these good deeds and by going on trips, the members of this club lived up to their goal. This goal was to do things for the school and the community while having fun. As Bill Hood put it, "It's just lots of fun."

Different Cultures Unite As Students Learn

Gaetano Barreta, Rune Sandor, and Fumi Horita indulge in a friendly joke while attending an International Club party.

Visiting a new country can be a startling experience for anyone, especially if one is staying for 9 months. This was the plight of the foreign exchange students, and fortunately for them, there was a club on campus designed to make them feel "at home". The International Club served two main purposes: allowing ACHS students a chance to learn about the unique cultures of other countries and providing activities geared toward foreign exchange students. In addition, this club paid for the exchange students yearbooks.

To start the year off right, the club put on a barbecue complete with good food and recreation. Later in the year the exchange students were treated to a sailing party and a beach party. They certainly had their share of fun, but their stay meant more than just fun, it was an education. All of the exchange students delivered presentations about their native countries to interested students who wanted to learn. Fumi Horita, a Japanese exchange student, said that he liked the club because he could show Japanese customs to American people, and he could learn different customs of the other countries.

Pupils Continue To Learn Outside Of Classroom

Lili Wong slices through a future éclair. Members prepared the ingredients at home and brought them to school.

A warm, cozy fire provided the perfect place for members to just relax and talk. This casual and friendly atmosphere was only one of the factors that made French Club so popular.

Many French students don't ever want to hear another "Bonjour" or "Merci" once they leave the classroom. These students were definitely not in the French Club. Members, interested in France and its culture, met in various homes where they performed skits, sang songs and were told stories by Seymour Posner, the club's advisor. Aside from meetings, the club attended a musical in Santa Barbara which dealt with the life of French singer, Edith Piaf.

December's Double Lunch gave members the chance to bring a little French culture into other students' lives.

French Christmas carols, sung in classrooms during school added something special to the holiday, but the real treat was the French Club's famous (and fattening) homemade eclairs. Later in the year, they added more calories with the candy sale and their club banquet.

French Club was certainly a fun way to get involved, but people didn't join it just for that reason; it was truly an educational experience. Member Amy Loewe said, "It's an opportunity to speak French outside of class. We're not just social; we learn a lot about France and its culture. It's more of a learning club than a social club."

Meetings And Events Bring In A Touch Of Spain

Holly Haverty concentrates on her lunch while Amy Hampton tells members her ideas about the Bon Voyage party for those who are going to Mexico

A week in warm, sunny Mexico. Sounds great, doesn't it? Well, that was just one of the projects embarked upon by Spanish Club members under the guidance of advisor, Chuck Stevenson. During Easter vacation, Stevenson and a group of students toured Mexico where they had a chance to test their skills with the Spanish language. In preparation for the trip, the tourists met at Stevenson's house where they saw slides and pictures of Mexico.

Although the trip to Mexico was the major project of the year, it wasn't the only one. In May, the club celebrated Cinco de Mayo, a prominent Mexican holiday. They also experienced the pleasure of preparing and eating real Spanish meals.

In these ways and others, this club lived up to its goal and purpose which was to look into the Spanish culture, customs, way of life, festivities, and different types of food.

Athletes Rely On Hard-Working Stats Girls

Lori Ebbinga, Carol Marvin, Karen Johnson, and Angela D'Addario show their devotion to the team by keeping stats and cheering them on.

Stats club was not only fun and educational; it was essential. All of the athletic teams relied on this club to keep an accurate record of their statistics. "It really helps the coaches out," said Stats club member, Carol Marvin.

Students in the Stats club had to go through a sort of training period. During this time, they learned to calculate stats after which they had to practice calculating stats. After they completed their "schooling", they attended sports events and did the real thing.

During football season, members were seen roaming the sidelines, marking off yards gained, passes attempted, and interceptions among other statistics. It wasn't unusual to see football players crowded around the stats sheet after a game, trying to see how many yards they ran or passed.

Basketball stats keepers held their place behind the score keepers' table during basketball games. It was their job to record fouls, points, and assists.

Other stats were kept in such sports as: wrestling, tennis, soccer, and baseball. Stats members truly did the teams a service while getting the opportunity to travel to other schools, as well.

A mutual interest in Germany and its culture provided the basis for the group of students who formed the German Club. This club allowed students to get together and discuss and share the cultural aspects of Germany and its language. Members were students of German teacher and club advisor, Lisa Mader. The club was organized to let the students and traditions of Germany. Learning German was made more fun with the celebration of German holidays. In October they participated in the Oktoberfest and in December they had a Christmas party. They also observed Fasching and Maifest, two German festivals.

At these parties and meetings, members sang songs and danced dances of Germany.

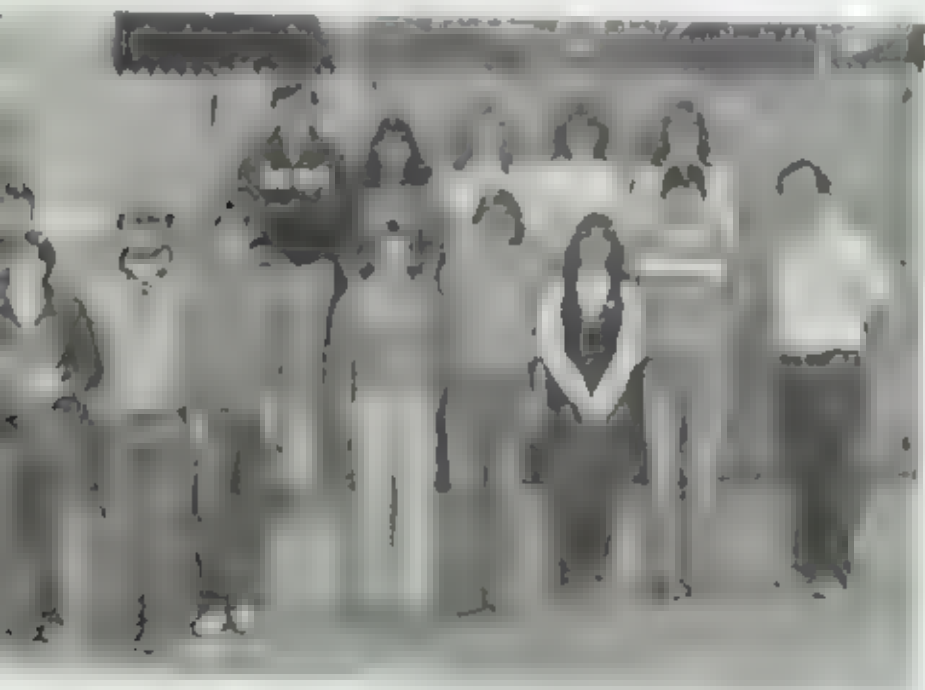

Fasching was made particularly enjoyable by the costumes members wore. In this event, members felt that they were experiencing the German holiday experience.

Another way that Germany was brought to ACHS students was through the authentic dishes that were prepared. At the Christmas party, German pork and sausage and Rouladen were served.

Erica Dobson decides to "be a clown" and does it quite well, while joining in the festivities at a Russian club party.

By indulging in tasty Russian dishes and taking part in many get-togethers, members of the Russian Club gained an interesting insight into the culture and customs of Russia. Members started out the year with a fall picnic. To this event, members brought genuine Russian dishes, such as Chicken Kotletki, Pirozhki, and Borscht. In addition to enjoying the delicious food, members also played Frisbee and softball.

Halloween, too, was celebrated with a Russian club party. At this event, Russian tea cakes, Baklazhan, and other Russian foods were served.

Easter provided members with the opportunity to partake in the custom of dying eggs the Russian way, with intricate patterns and detail.

Although Russian Club members did a lot of partying and having fun, this club gave them an education. It taught them about the kind of life a Russian person leads, according to club president, Scott Shuster. This club promoted a better understanding of the Russian way of life. It also created some lasting friendships.

Career-Minded Youths Sharpen Business Skills

Nellie Balderamma and Helen Muro discuss the contents of their class folders, during a business class

For students like Brett Tucker, being in DECA meant a great deal of book work and studying Forward-thinking business students got a head start in the world of business through their membership to DECA. Distributive Education Clubs of America taught high school students the basics of marketing, merchandising, and management. This club was probably the most career-oriented club on campus. It provided students with genuine experience in the job market.

Many DECA students attended school for half of the day, and then worked on the job for the latter half of the day. In doing so, they gained valuable knowledge about business, and received credits, as well.

Another way DECA members sharpened their business skills was through competitions. The Thousand Oaks Shopping Mall was the site of one of these competitions. At competitions, members are tested on their skills in areas such as: merchandising, selling, and management. In April, they had their State competition in San Jose.

To raise money for their competitions, they held a candy sale and worked concessions. At December's Double Lunch, they sold hot dogs.

DECA truly lived up to its goal of providing students with a working knowledge of the free enterprise system.

ACHS was once again blessed with an extraordinarily large CSF Club as many students continued their above-average scholastic achievements. These students joined the California Scholastic Federation as a means of furthering future educational endeavors, namely college. CSF also gave its members a chance to push themselves academically outside of

In November, CSF members attended the Ventura County Academic Decathlon. There, they were tested in a variety of areas: economics, fine arts, science, essay writing, and speech giving. Later in the year, members competed in a Knowledge Bowl, a sort of scholastic trivia game among high school students.

Mike Mc Namara, alias "Dode", is stoked on not having to wear a wetsuit in the winter.

New to ACHS was the surfing club. ARC surf club, which was named after a surfing break in Ventura that few people know about, boasted a membership of quality surfers. These surfers felt that it was time that the yearbook included more of the sport that they and several others enjoy so much. However, this was not the reason for forming the club; it was formed to promote surfing and to get everyone interested in it. Having surf club also proved that its members were organized and not just a bunch of "beach bums".

Being a surfer was the only requirement for this club. Members of this club had anywhere from a year of surfing experience to four years. All of the members were proud of their club and of their sport. "It's the best thing because it gives you an open and free mind and it gives you a better all around feeling," said member, Ray King.

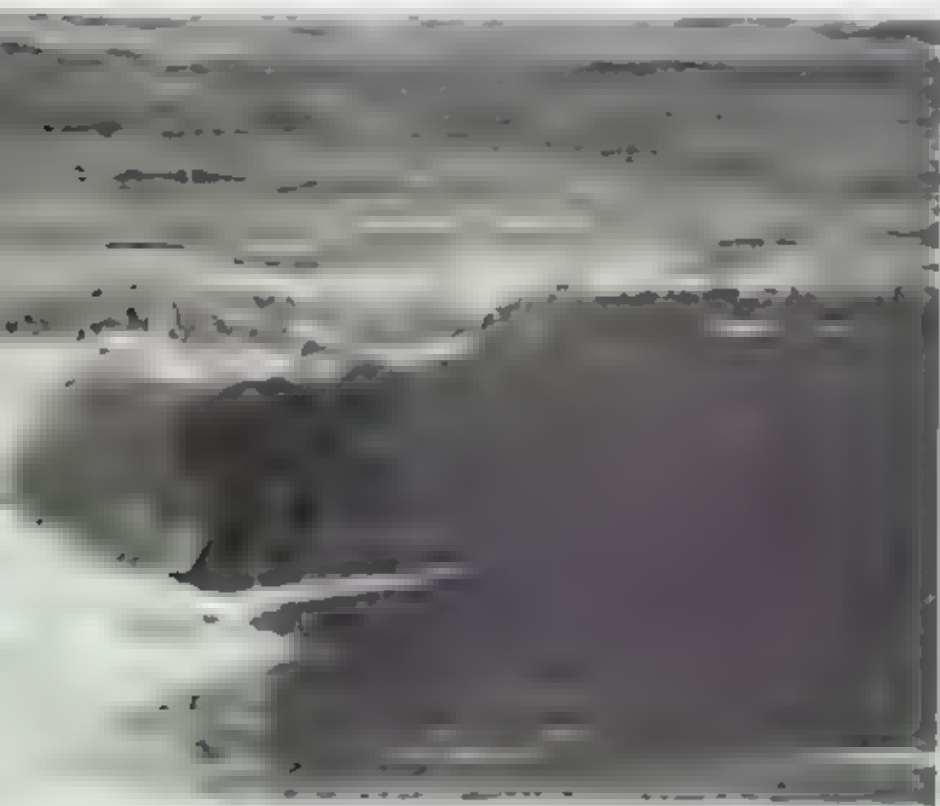

Most of the members just surfed for fun and found that being part of the club had obvious benefits, such as large discounts on surfing equipment. Others, however, competed in contests.

Surfers Find Ideal Waves At Unknown Beach Spots

Ray King is showing style with radicalness. He was considered the top dog at Camarillo High School.

Mike Winter is showing small wave skills. Mike had been surfing for about a year and a half and had progressed very much.

Those who competed were Steve Bass, Ray King, Ken Ritzi, Donny Scholl, and Mike Winter. In the ARC Inter-Club Contest #1, four members competed successfully. Both Steve Bass and Donny Scholl reached the semi-finals in this event. Ray King placed second in this same event, and Ken Ritzi placed fourth.

Ray also placed in other competitions throughout the year. At the Ventura College Surfing Contest, he placed fourth. He made quarter finals at the VCSO County Lawn Contest and the Sport Port Contest. At the Sport Port Contest, Ray finished twelfth all-around.

Ken Ritzi, going for the slash of the eighties. Kenny was a senior and was considered one of the better surfers at ACHS.

Mike Winter competed at the NSSA Huntington Beach Contest and broke to quarter finals. NSSA stands for the National Scholastic Surfing Association and it has the toughest amateur competition in California.

Mike and Ray belonged to a surf team and competed regularly. At contests, they were judged on performance on a wave, wave quality, longest wave and consistency. Judges took their top three waves out of fifteen minutes of surfing.

As a club, they took trips to Baja, Jalama, Cayucas, San Diego, Huntington Beach, and Ventura.

Agricultural Skills Strengthened By FFA

Bob Kotter and Rick Pazen observe the antics and actions of a newborn piglet and its mother.

Watching a ewe give birth, grooming a steer for the fair, and plowing fields are just a few of the events that some FFA members will recall when reviewing the year.

FFA, or Future Farmers of America, gave those with interests in livestock or agriculture a chance to get some practical experience in both of these fields, while learning a great deal in the process.

To be a member of FFA, students had to be enrolled in the vocational or agricultural program at ACHS. These members had a number of goals and purposes in mind when participating in the events and activities connected with their organization. One of these goals was to strengthen the confidence of students of vocational agriculture in themselves and their work.

This goal was accomplished as FFA members competed successfully at fairs and shows, such as the Ventura County Fair. This happening produced several winners for ACHS in both the livestock and floriculture contests.

FFA members were proud of their club for they knew the importance of their organization and its goals. "Without people in agriculture, how is everyone going to survive?" said member, Rick Pazen. "There's always a need for agriculture people."

A major emphasis of FFA was the development of leadership skills and abilities to prepare students for leadership roles in agricultural careers. As Pazen said, "It's learning to do a career in the future. Many members were planning for a career in the field of agriculture, and not just as the stereotypical farmer. The field of agriculture involves more than just the worker who does the planting; there are literally hundreds of job opportunities. They could shoot for anything from a farm manager to a landscaper.

Planning for the future is always a wise thing to do and the FFA'ers certainly acted wisely. Most of all, they had a good time while they learned. The friendships they formed were close, and time they shared was worthwhile.

Movimiento Estudiantil Chicano en Aztlan, or the Chicano Student Movement in the Southwest was once again a part of ACHS's club roster. MECHA was reincarnated after a year's absence. Last year, there was no MECHA due to a lack of interest and imbalance in the work load, but a revived interest has brought it back.

MECHA's purpose is to act as a support system for all Chicano and Mexican students. It provided them with a place where they could interact with others who shared the same problems as they did,

and a way to work those problems out.

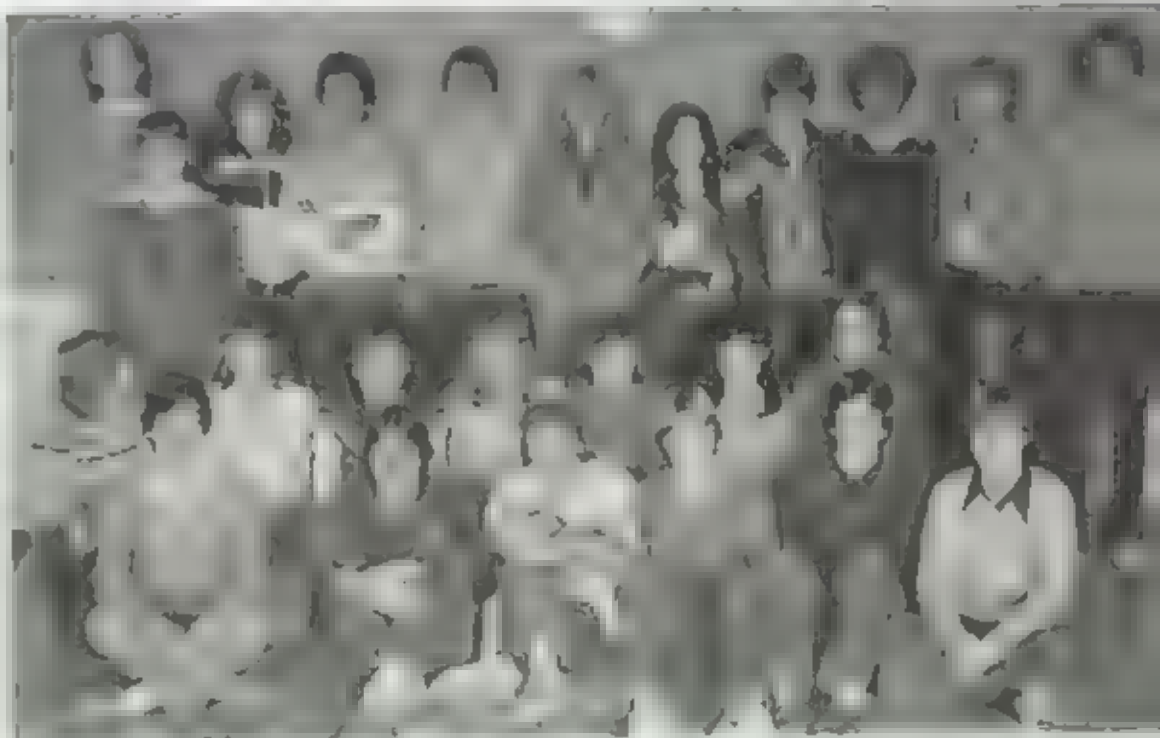

However, the organization's primary objective was to educate each member and show him the importance of educating himself through schooling and life, in general. Leaders of the club recognized the fact that their greatest value was education and tried to instill this standard in their members. Being minority students, made education even more important if they wanted to compete in the everyday world

Jeanette Jennett, Stinger advisor, is obviously shocked upon finding that a student has missed their deadline, once again

David Banuelos, Christine Fullerton, and Lisa Burch look over various publications to get ideas for the Stinger, while their fellow classmates have a little fun

The school newspaper, with the generous financial support of the Camarillo Daily News, produced professional-looking editions which included news, features, editorials, and sports throughout the year. The staff was made up mainly of Jeanette Jennett's fourth period Writing for Publication class, which consisted mostly of Juniors and Seniors. Many of these students were involved in a variety of other school-related clubs and projects. Writing for Publication gave these aspiring young journalists the chance to experience real-live newspaper reporting.

When asked why they had joined the Stinger staff, students responded with phrases like, "It's a good experience" and "Because I wanted to write."

Said David Granger, "I wanted the chance to do something for the student body, and writing for the school paper was a good chance to do that."

The staff felt that the value of the Stinger was its information and entertainment, as well as helping them to become good journalists.

Said staff members, "The paper informs students of happenings on campus."

Paper Becomes Important Part Of School Life

Dave Spangrude receives some helpful words of wisdom from editor-in-chief Amy Loewe

Stinger's second semester as a full-fledged school newspaper resulted in its becoming an important part of school life. Students on campus began to look forward to Thursdays when the paper would come out, so they could find out what was going on around the school. Teachers looked forward to Thursdays because of the peace and quiet they received while the students were reading.

A few new additions to the staff brought in fresh ideas and different insight. This insight helped greatly when the difficult task of assigning stories came around. Thinking up unique and interesting stories was rarely easy, but somehow they managed

it

Although thinking up stories was a chore, meeting deadlines presented a definite problem. It wasn't unusual to find staff members scrambling to complete a story before it was to be sent to the Daily News for typesetting and laying out.

Stinger staff members owe a debt of gratitude to the Daily News without whom the paper would never have been possible. Every two weeks, Layout Editor Kathy Egold and some assistants would go to the Daily News office where they would lay out the paper. This experience taught staff members how a "real newspaper" is actually produced.

Workers Are Restricted By Tight Budget

Naomi Mizusaki, co-editor of the Student Life section, is caught daydreaming during the trip to UC San Diego, where she and 9 other staff members attended camp

Casey Taylor attempts to coordinate layout, pictures, and copy in a way that will compliment the subject of the page. This is rarely an easy thing to do

Byron Taylor, photography editor, examines one of his prints proper contrast. Byron spent hundred of hours in the darkroom working

For yearbook workers, the year began early in August when 10 staff members attended a yearbook camp at UC San Diego. During the five days spent at camp, yearbookers learned the latest techniques and current styles that yearbooks were incorporating. However, staff members did more than attend workshops and classes; each night they participated in a different activity. These included: watching The Creature of the Black Lagoon in 3-D, a night at the theater with Shakespeare's Taming of the Shrew, and a beach party to top off the week.

With their new-found knowledge and enthusiasm, the staff was ready to put out "the best book ever", but was hindered, somewhat, by financial difficulties. Economic factors, a slightly lower student population, and a lack of publicity resulted in fewer sales than previous years. Several ideas were brought forth in an attempt to solve the problem. Ads, unwanted by the staff and their adviser, Ron Yung, were passed over in favor of a patron's page. This solution made possible the desired content of color pages.

Deadlines, Layouts, Copy, Printing, Proof . . .

Although the word "yearbook" was synonymous with the word "work," the staff managed to make time for fun as shown at this pizza party.

The two Scotts, Yamaguchi and Faul, work jointly on a layout idea. Yamaguchi was responsible for the Academics section.

Lisa Buell, a contributing editor of the student life section, thinks deeply before writing copy.

Steve Hotelling, editor-in-chief, battles the dreaded "deadline monster" with his trusty pica ruler in hand.

Deadlines! From before school started until the end of March, this word plagued the minds of yearbook staff members. There was no way to avoid, or deny them; they were always there, hanging over their heads.

Only a true staff member knows what putting out a yearbook involves. Every page was a task in itself. Each and every layout had to be unique in its own way. Every single word had to be thought out, written, and typed so that years from now, Scorpions could read about what school was really like. Every picture had to be taken, printed, and identified correctly, and for every picture that went in, there were at least a dozen that were taken and never used.

Long hours. Many weekends, holidays, and a great deal of free time were given up in favor of working in the yearbook room. At times, it was like a second home. Seven or eight hours at a time were spent within its walls. Classes were missed, tests were made up, and homework was fallen behind on because of a past deadline, or incomplete page.

Was it worth it? Well, just take a look at the pages you see, and I think you can answer that question for yourself.

A not so long, long time ago in a yearbook room not so far away, the late night yearbooker joined the Rebellion against the evil Deadline Empire headed by Emperor Posten and his henchman Darth Hotelling. ## Stepping Through The Years

The underclass braved many challenges at A.C.H.S. this year. Freshmen at the bottom held their own and dared to be the class of '86. They stepped into high school confused by the change of pace. They found their way around the school and managed to get the lower lockers within their reach. Although not as experienced as the upperclassmen, freshmen did find their place at high school.

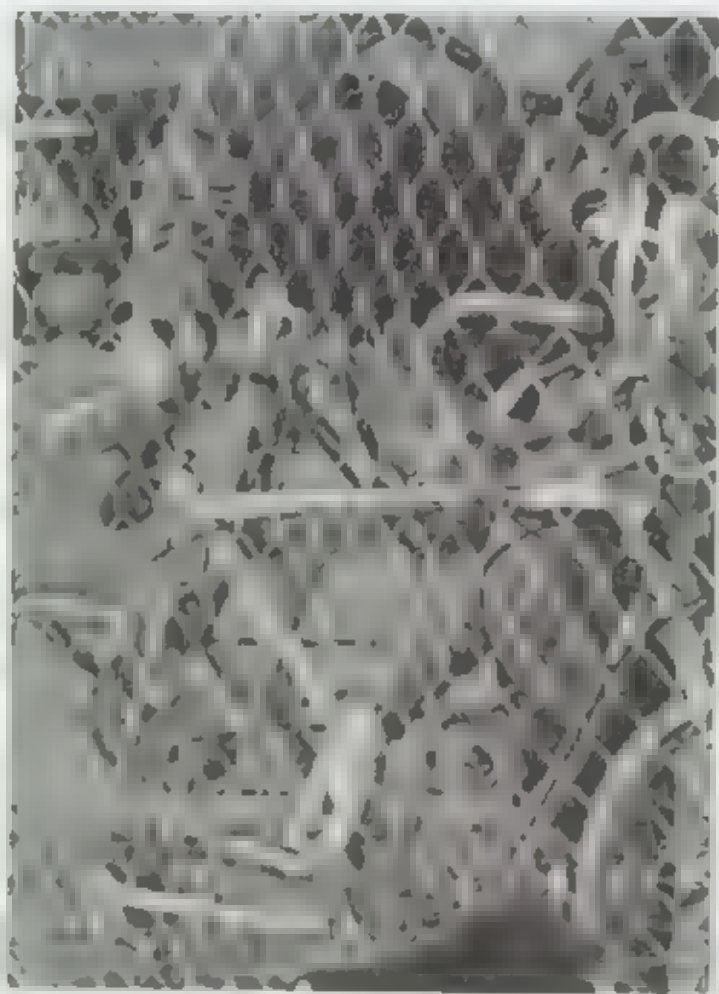

Sophomores, a year older and a year wiser, knew what to expect at high school. They were no longer the very bottom class and let everyone know it by exhibiting great school spirit at rallies and games. The class of '85 participated in school activities more than before and took a bolder step.

Juniors took their place as the Class of '84. Stepping up, they rivaled the seniors. They planned many dances for A.C.H.S., including the Prom. They kept up their school spirit at the football and basketball games. The juniors formed the Junior Class Council to keep on top of school activities. They were an active class that brought A.C.H.S. to its best.

Because of trashcan bruises the typical freshman finds it hard to get out of bed, but he usually makes it. After a nice eye opening shower the freshman goes to the kitchen and eats his usual Trix Fruit Loops, or other favorite cereals. After brushing his teeth, the freshman kisses Mom and Dad good bye and runs to meet the big yellow bus on the corner. The bus delivers the freshman to school where he runs to first period. After a morning of hard work, the typical freshman enjoys a good hot meal, and that burrito or french fries really hit the spot. During lunch a food fight breaks out and the freshman is in the heart of the fighting. After three more periods and three more long runs to class the freshman is exhausted. Later the freshman may be involved in an extra-curricular activity such as football, basketball, tennis, or other sport or club.

The typical sophomore wakes up in the morning and crawls out of bed and into the shower. After a shower he grabs a bite to eat and then either walks to the bus stop or scrounges a ride from an upperclassman. After arriving at school tardy, the sophomore struggles his way through either three or four periods before lunch. During lunch he usually buys some delicious cafeteria food and a milk or two. After lunch he makes his way through the remaining classes and then heads for home or attends a sports practice, a club, or an activity.

Waking up 30 minutes late almost every morning, the typical junior skips breakfast and runs into the shower, afterward spending 45 minutes making his hair beautiful. He then fumbles through the house to find the keys to his parents' car. On the way to school, the junior sees the freshmen and sophomores waiting for their buses. When he finally gets to school, he realizes that there is a killer history test scheduled for second period, and he ditches first period to cram for it. As the day progresses, his homework gradually builds up. At lunch time, the junior either hangs around in front of the cafeteria or goes inside to buy a hot plate. He takes it easy while he talks to friends. After lunch the junior has two hard classes but usually sleeps through them. When school is finally out, the junior gets to the parking lot and takes off at high speed to go to a team practice, or some other school activity, or he rushes to his job, realizing that he is only 15 minutes late.

Grads Step Up

Sports, Prom, Rallies, and Powder-Puff Football combined with school spirit and enthusiasm made the Class of '83 the best that A.C.H.S. has ever seen. The class took pride in showing that improvement was a must. The campus was touched by new ideas and vast changes that the Senior Class Officers spent much time planning.

At lunch time, seniors could enjoy their "Senior Patio" with a brand new look. The walls were painted and the benches were fixed. To add to this was the Senior Newsletter, and

Seniors Enjoy Leisure Sports

Whether on the weekends, holidays, or after school, seniors took advantage of this extra time to participate in non scholastic sports. The seniors played soccer at the many parks in town. Soccer was liked in Camarillo as it had been in years past. Surfing still took a share of followers throughout the year. Many surfed summer through winter, wherever the waves were. In the winter many seniors hit the slopes from far North to closer areas such as Snow Summit. Seniors participated in a variety of sports to have fun during their last year of high school. Friends usually took part in sports together to make that sport that much more enjoyable. Sports made the days more pleasant and were an escape from the humdrum of school.

Seniors Show Spirit

More than one half the seniors this year had a severe case of senioritis. That didn't stop them from attending the pep rallies and supporting the football games and the basketball games. The spirit was outstanding with a great number of people dressing up on Halloween, Hat Day, Hawaiian Day, and Blue and White day. The senior girls showed their spirit by getting involved in the powder puff game and making a big deal of birthdays. The boys involved themselves in rallies to prove to the school that the seniors would win the class competitions and were tops. A great job was done on the senior float with the help of many seniors. The seniors proved that they were seniors and that their last year would be filled with energy and lots of enthusiasm.

Seniors Use Game Time

Seniors excelled in many of the games they were involved in. Ball games were well supported by the boosters and students. The first year senior girls participated in and won the Powder game against the junior girls. Basketball games were outstanding. Girls volleyball for the first time in five years, made it to CIF prelims. All the games this year were great, and the spirit of seniors and underclassmen helped considerably. Because of year's games, many seniors received scholarships and recognition to advance them further in colleges and jobs.

Officers Hard At Work

ASB did a great job in organizing school activities. Seniors put forth a special effort to send the 'Senior Star' to those who were interested. The "Senior Star" was a paper, just for the seniors, that included information about colleges, upcoming events, senior birthdays in that month, and a chance for the seniors to be heard. Rallies all ran smoothly because of the organization of the seniors. Dress-up days and special events were also organized by most of the seniors in ASB. With the help of the ASB and the Super Seniors, this year was filled with spirit, enthusiasm, lots of energy, and organization.

Grads Reveal Senioritis

As high school progresses, a student evolves through the stages of life, through freshman, sophomore, and junior and senior years. As a student's senior year progresses, he evolves also. The senior passes through the beginning of the year with the newly found feeling of being the oldest at the school. Toward the middle he gets the hang of being the one setting examples and trends, the one inspiring spirit and motivation. At the end of the year he has full control of his superiority and a complete case of "senioritis". "Senioritis" is a contagious disease contracted by seniors and maybe a few juniors. It is when a senior becomes so drained with the past three years of everyday school routine that he is in a sort of silent rebellion. It seems to be passed on from generation to generation. As the class of '83 nears its finale, the feeling of command, prestige, and power will go unheralded-until the next generation.

Grads Get Involved

Seniors became more involved in clubs, academics, and other school functions. Many clubs on campus and off campus flourished with senior membership. In some of these clubs seniors held offices. They were instrumental in following through with club goals and doing the best they could for the club.

Academically seniors pushed on to their goals. Grads studied harder their last year to meet those goals. Some goals were set for purposes that were merely personal, and others were set specifically for future studies.

A major function that seniors participated in was sports. From football to tennis, a senior could be found. If they were not participating in sports, seniors could be found supporting those who played.

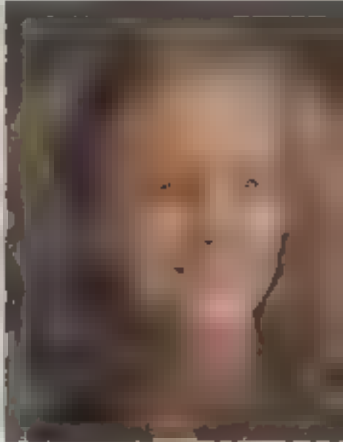

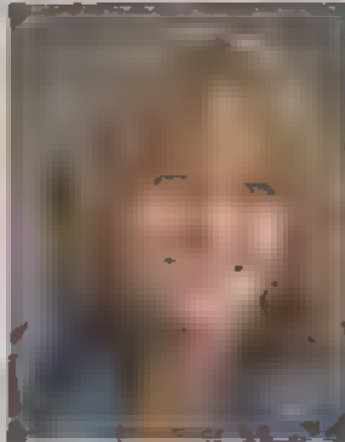

Involvement in school became important. For example, an involved senior had a healthy college application. Others were involved just to have fun.

Seniors Get Active

Seniors were active in school their last year. There were many opportunities to "show your spirit". On the many dress-up days, seniors actively participated in them, senior girls showed how active they were by playing against the junior girls in the Powder Puff game. At the rallies, seniors had the chance to be involved in some of the many class competitions. Sometimes, seniors would get so active that they would win. Grads participated in double lunch activities along with club activities. Seniors got active to do as much as they could their last year.

Lunch Is A Real Break

Lunch time had more meaning than just eating. Being the only break for students, lunch was very much needed. During this period seniors talked out problems, shared the latest news, and ate. This break was necessary to catch a breath from the monotony of class time. Seniors grouped together with their friends and shared this little time together. Socializing around the quad took up most of the time. Off-campus lunches were also a part. Local food places like Taco Bell and McDonalds were frequented by those who left campus.

Weekends Are Pastime

Whenever they had free time, seniors took full advantage of it. Typically, seniors went out on the weekends. Movies were still popular. The drive-ins at Ventura and Thousand Oaks were frequented along with the many walk-ins. Some seniors cruised Main Street in Ventura while others went out to L.A.'s Sunset Blvd. Going to Westwood for a variety of reasons kept many grads occupied. The numerous shops there provided much entertainment for seniors. A favorite of many seniors was to party on weekends. There was usually a party locally. Other free time came from vacations, after school, and after work.

Rallies Bid All Types

The ACHS fight song started the enthusiasm growing, with the cheerleaders and songleaders leading the crowd. The pep rallies were held before most of the home football games. The spirit spread through the stands, causing an outstanding showing at the games. The usual "Roll Call" was done to determine who had greater spirit and strength. The winners, the Seniors' Another class competition was held in which Larry Kine won for the seniors also. The seniors this year were really full of energy and spark and were involved in every competition held. Competitions were won, tricks were played, and voices were heard from the Senior Class of 1983.

Friends Unique To Seniors

Friends were especially unique for seniors. The role of friends became increasingly important as the four years of high school came to an end. Friends shared their problems with each other, they lived their joys and pains together and most importantly, they grew together. The role of friends became more important because the seniors went through their last year with them. They went out together, participated in school together, and were always together. Essentially, friends made the last year what it was.

Its Been A Long Four Years

As graduation approached, seniors began to look back on their four years in high school. We remembered the good times and the bad, remembered the hard work and frustration of classes, the spirit at rallies, and the good times we had at lunch talking, laughing, meeting new friends. As the years went by, we grew and developed our own opinions. We learned to cope and solve our problems, we also grew up. Even though going to high school was hard and frustrating, the good times we had overshadowed the bad. The spirit that flowed through the air helped us to unite and help one another. The memories of sports, lunches, crazy dress-up days, clubs, times with friends will never be forgotten. It has been a long, quick four years.

Working In Our Favor

Teaching and helping, these were the two main concerns of the A.C.H.S. faculty. Students received expert instruction in subjects ranging from math to anthropology. Many teachers not only taught but instructed in extra-curricular events, such as sports and clubs. In all, almost one-third of the teachers offered their time with non-academic activities.

In the office, the secretaries kept the school running and, without them, it could not function.

The administration at Camarillo High was a hard working group. Counselors, principals, and other specialized jobs, such as Dean of Students and Athletic Director: this group handled discipline, organization, and most of the important jobs that must be done to keep the school going.

When a student needed special assistance there were people to go to. Students feeling ill, or just a little under the weather, went to the school nurse for care. If a student needed guidance in finding information about college, the Career Center Director was there to help. Keeping the classes well supplied with books was the job of the workers in the textbook room. The librarian was always ready to help a student find the right book for a research paper, or for just casual reading.

This faculty kept the school and students functioning through the tight-budgeted year.

Administration

Several changes occurred in the counseling department. Instead of dealing solely with a student's class schedule and personal problems, the counselors also handled discipline and attendance as well. Mr. Tackett, former dean of attendance, was placed in charge of the counselors, including the juniors' new counselor, Andy Anderson.

Agriculture

The Agriculture Department kept busy under department head, Bruce Ritchey. Students learned how to raise livestock, and how to plant and harvest crops.

Students also entered livestock and agriculture in the county fair.

Art

The Art Department, headed by Don Wallace, found itself in a financial bind. Students found they had no funds in order to paint murals on the activity rooms as last year's art students did.

Classes in the art department taught students a variety of things from charcoal sketching to watercolors.

Business

The new wing of ACHS, completed in the summer of 1982 provided a new home for the Business Department. Business classes gave students an opportunity to learn the skills needed when working in an office. Students learned typing, shorthand, computer programming, and fundamental office procedures.

English

The English Department underwent some changes as far as staff members. Mrs. Valdez became the new librarian, Mrs. Linda Colley left ACHS to teach elsewhere, and Mr. Glenn took her job.

English classes taught students how to diagram, write a play, or how to understand historical or modern literature.

Foreign Language

For students who had their eye on college, the Foreign Language department was just as important as math or English. Students had their choices of Spanish, French, German, and Russian. After completing their two years of a language, students had acquired skills necessary for basic communication.

Many students taking classes from the Home Economics department could be easily identified by the "egg children" that they carried, or the preschool youngsters that they led around campus. This department also offered classes in cooking, sewing, and interior decorating.

Industrial Art

Many people thought of the Industrial Arts department as only wood shop and metal shop, but it contained much more. Drafting, architecture, and electronics were also available to students looking for electives. This department, headed by Richard Freeland, gave students a background in skills that could later be developed and used as an actual career.

The Music Department, under Carmen Falso, underwent several changes. After ten years of wearing the same uniforms, the ACHS marching band purchased new uniforms. Band made up the bulk of the music department, but classes such as drill team and vocal training were also offered.

Physical Education

Dedicated athletes are a must for any successful team, but without strong coaching, there can be no team. Our P.E. department, headed jointly by Jack Lecari and Barb Swetek, provided such coaching. This department also fulfilled the graduation requirement for two years of P.E. Flag football, volleyball, and softball were some of the basic sports that students participated in.

Something that many people don't realize about Camarillo High is that it doesn't run by itself. Bus drivers make sure that all the carless students get to and from school, and they make sure that the campus is clean from litter. Cafeteria workers labor over a hot stove so the students can eat. Secretaries virtually run the ship at ACHS. Secretaries keep records, account for attendance, operate the school computer, and set appointments with counselors. Without all these people, our school would never run as smoothly and efficiently as it does.

After all their years at Camarillo High, it is hard to say goodbye to devoted teachers. Such teachers are Mr. Seymour Posner and Mrs. Suzanne Schindler

Mr. Posner will always be remembered for his great work in the foreign language department, and also for the time that he spent taking groups of students overseas to strengthen their knowledge in the customs and languages of Europe

Mrs. Schindler will be remembered for her extensive work in the Business Department. Mrs. Schindler devoted her time so that many others could master skills such as typing and shorthand

Also retiring this year are textbook clerks Mrs. Blanche Burns and Mrs. Toby O'Connell. They will be remembered for their ability to keep order and the distribution of books running smoothly. Mrs. Bushman departs ACHS after a rewarding and very hard working career at Camarillo. She has been the main receptionist for years and will be dearly missed. All the students and faculty say goodbye to these hardworking people and thanks

Special thanks to:

Chuck Mears Camera and Randolph Studios for their special assistance and kindness

Perry Heron, our financial advisor, who gave more of his time and effort to keep us above rising waters, the Camarillo Daily News for their many appreciated photographs, the teachers who were so understanding when we interrupted and missed their classes,

the Administration for their much needed assistance,

Mrs. Andrews for keeping our account for us,

Mr. Wallace for sharing the darkroom with us,

Walter Bobkiewicz for getting all of the patrons together,

Mr. Dave Sorenson, Josten's American Yearbook representative

our parents and families for their support, from the editor to the staff for their time, devotion, and patience

No mere words can express our gratitude for the time, devotion, experience, patience, and understanding of Mr. Ron Yung. In our hearts your unrecognized efforts were always appreciated. Although we never said it, thank you Mrs. Carol Yung for understanding the many hours your husband spent helping us.

Have Fun This Summer, and good luck next year Steven Podzimek

Steve,
You're a crayzy radical dude but you're pretty decent anyway. It was fun making Thoughtprints On life/death decisions Wasn't it? Have a terrific Summer and stay outta trouble could!!)

Love,
Renée

Steve,
It's been fun knowing you this year. I hope you have a long lasting career as a politician. (Ha Ha)
Luv-ya,
Terri Mejia

Steve,
Have a good summer & see you at camp!

Bye Bye

As if you ever need to talk or any-thing thing, we'll be right down the street!!

Love (and trench class! stay sweet!

Steve, so sorry for you to bad we both made one big m's take in life. we met and. Ha. Death to ART. Ha. Ha. you read this met.
anyway take it easy all. 4622219
love always, don't you owe me calls
serving you

Steve, I've been nice meeting & knowing you!
I hope you have a good summer and pick up some girls!
Oh well, I'll write more in a second!
I'm glad we were in the same trench class!

Even though I don't know you that much, I think you're a really nice guy. I'm answering my possible question of you need any thing, call me up. (484-3024) Hope to become better friends in the year to come.

Charles Stephen McPhadden III
(Alias) - Aquaman <sup>(there)</sup> <sup>(this)</sup> you child molester!

How can they allow you to come to MCHS with your criminal record? Don't get caught!

Pamela Charles

Steve,
you're weird.
You're strange. I don't know about you. See you next year.
Dick Ziden

Don't die,
Jesus!

Steve,
It was fun having you as a counselor!
I needed it! Have a great summer!
See ya next year! Love always,
your sister,

Pam "86"

raduate SQN131 PS

Steve,
You're very different,
but I like you. I consider myself quite out of the ordinary. I see I can relate. There are many classes. Hope you're not too busy to take it easy.
See you next year!

Steve,
I'm glad I met you this year. It's been really fun in weather's class. I hope we never have to have her again. Hope you have a great summer and see ya next year.
Love,
Krista Jensen
85.
